CALL of the WEST

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Dona sat huddled on the stone couch, her jacket pulled around her and her eyes blazing. "Take one step toward me and I'll—!" Dona's words tumbled out in an angry torrent.

"Scream?" Stan was smiling now.

"I'll do more than that!" "You might let me have one of the blankets from that bed. There are five on it." Stan stood with his hands on his hips, a wicked light in his grey eyes.

"Help yourself!" Suddenly Dona realized that she had been making an unnecessary fuss. Her anger did not abate, however. She had been fooled and that in itself was an insult.

"And there's a trick combination to the bed," Ball went on. He took a step forward and Dona arose. He bent and whisked a blanket from the cot, then opened the others at the top. "You crawl in at this end. If a pine needle from the mattress sticks through you reach carefully down and pluck it out. I have never had more than four bother me in one evening."

His eyes were very serious.

Dona refused to join the spirit of jest. She kept remembering that she hated this killer and that she wanted to see him suffer.

Stan took his blanket and wrapped it into a little roll. "You may turn the light down and blow it out," he said as he turned toward the opening. "Good night."

Dona refused to answer. She was sitting on the bunk, thinking deeply.

The scraping of Stan Ball's boots died away outside and the girl was forced to believe that he had gone. She got up and walked to the entrance. Ten steps down the stone corridor showed her what she wanted to know. Her captor sat with his back against the cliff, his long legs stretched out across the entrance. He was smoking, drawing in slow, deliberate draughts of smoke and letting them club upward of their own fancy. The black mare stood with her muzzle against his arm.

Dona watched this silhouette turn out to be the wronged and for a full five minutes, then she lay down. She had to admit that Ball was a complex person. His lean jaw, his steely eyes and his tight mouth spelled all that she knew of him to be, but there were times when the lips took on a half-smile and the grey eyes lighted deep.

The hunted, challenging wariness of his manner was the tell-tale trait that marked him for what he was. Dona had met Ball Ball's kind before.

Her musings led her nowhere and she fell to planning how she could escape. Getting up, she examined the supplies. There was enough water for another day and possibly enough food for three meals such as they had eaten that night. Dona made up her mind to play Ball's game and see if he would not slip away on a foraging expedition.

She returned to the bunk and slipped off her boots and jacket. Without hesitation she slid into the bunk and snuggled down. She thought with grim satisfaction that she would spend a much warmer night than her captor. The cave was high up on the rim and the night would be cold to the point of frost.

Out at the entrance of the cave Stan Ball sat and berated himself for taking Dona prisoner. It had been a wild fancy, a decision of a second's consideration. He was always making them and afterward paying for his blunders. All he could hope to do by this step was to rouse the posse to renewed vigor and add more men to the already overrun woods. He had deliberately lessened his chances of escape.

But the thing that made him feel most guilty was keeping the girl overnight in the cave. On the way up the mountain it had seemed an excellent way to arouse Dona's husband from his complacency and force him to realize that he should be more attentive to such a wife. Now Stan was not so sure all this would work out as he had intended. Winters might devour the cakes and bacon. At this rate they would be out of food with another meal. Nothing was said. Stan had dropped back into a moody silence. He was watching the outlaw, Ball from Blind River.

After breakfast Stan let the flames stand dirty. There was not enough water left to wash them. He sauntered out into the sunshine and stood watching the blue haze in the canyon below. Dona finally came out and sat on the other side of the entrance.

Noon came with a pleasant heat that was not oppressive but that warmed deeply. Dona had busied herself with a careful check of the country below. She was sure she had spotted the Pass Creek trail and that she could go to it if she escaped. Ball had stayed close enough to her so that any attempt to slip away would have been foolish.

He halted in making a turn across the little shelf and stood looking down at her. His eyes were expressionless and his lips formed a straight line.

"I'll make a bargain," he began. "And I won't listen." She cut in. "I have food cached down the trail a half mile. I'll get it and replenish our supply of water. You need not go if you will promise to be here when I return. If you do not care to promise I'll take you along." His eyes searched her face rapidly.

Dona met his gaze squarely. Here was a chance. She did not owe this killer a promise kept. He did not deserve it. She got to her feet slowly. "I'll stay here."

The fire roared pleasantly and the bacon and coffee gave off an aroma that made Dona's mouth water. Stan produced a bit of flour and made four griddle cakes. He browned them to a turn and flipped two of them on Dona's plate. Then he smothered them with strips of crisp bacon. A steaming cup of black coffee completed the fare.

With a satisfied feeling, Dona devoured the cakes and bacon. At

PHYSICAL CULTURE.

Three Pupils Sit for Examination.

AT MAURICIO COLLEGE.

A practical physical culture examination was held at the Mauricio College of Physical Education yesterday when three pupils sat for the test and passed in easy style. The pupils had to go through a series of eight exercises, including some weight lifting within an hour.

Stamina, strength and accuracy were displayed by all three pupils who did the exercises in good form.

Mr. J. Alabaster of Mount Austin Barracks went through the test in excellent form and was just over four months in training. Great hopes are expected of him and if he goes on the way he has been going, he will soon rank with the champion weight lifters.
 Mr. W. Young of Carlowitz was the next best man, and although he was in training for less than three months, he made marvelous improvements in strength and physique. He is an other promising pupil of the eight stone class and will one day shine in the weight lifting world. Mr. H. S.
 Wan was the third pupil to go through the test and passed successfully. Mr.
 Wan is less than two months in training and deserves great credit for such a wonderful performance in such a short time. He is the brother of Dr.
 Y. S. Wan, a prominent Medical practitioner, and who is also pupil of the Mauricio College.

The rest of the pupils who were eagerly watching the exercises done will be sitting for their examination in June next year.

OF WOMEN

Black to flatter your figure, pink to flatter your face, is the all-together enchanting combination in this glamorous hostess gown. In addition to the happy union of colours there is glamour in the cut of the garment.

Tight-fitting, sleek and alluring is the dull-surfaced black velvet gown itself. Graceful, feminine and original is the addition of pink crepe which makes a high front neckline and a couple of cascading drapes in the back.

As a matter of fact, the pink crepe seems to begin with the flowing drape that swishes off the left shoulder, continue around in front to make the smart front neckline, tuck under the right sleeve and flow on down the back, stopping to be tucked under the black at the waistline and then continue to form a little train in the back.

The short, tight sleeves of the black velvet and the unusual one-side low decollete in the back are two more points of interest. Both help to give this hostess gown something that in turn makes the woman who wears it romantic.

BEAUTY HINTS.

Evening Make-Up More Colourful.

It is the make-up you wear with them that gives allure to many of the evening ensembles this winter.

Before you apply your make-up, be sure that your skin is in a condition to receive it properly and do its best by it.

The foundation you use depends on the condition of your skin. The great majority of women over 20 have skins that are dry, rather than oily. Therefore, a heavy, delicious foundation cream is best for evening.

If you can't manage the moist, luscious look they give your skin, use a lighter, oily finishing cream. If you happen to have an oily skin, pick a lotion that smooths the skin without adding oil to it. But remember, the skin with a moist look is the one that looks youngest under electric lights.

One little do luxe touch you might give yourself for special occasions is to use an ice pack before you put on this cream. It tightens up the skin again. If your hot bath has in any way made it lax and opened its pores. The moisture of the ice, plus the rich finishing cream, is what gives that young look all women want.

Your rouge goes on first of all, after your skin has been treated to its evening creaming.

Use cream rouge, by all means, for powder rouge has a way of making your skin look dry. Remember, too, that the rouge you use of an evening can be brighter, can be used more lavishly and can give a much more artificial effect in evening than you can stand in the daytime.

Put your evening rouge on your cheek-bones, patting it out toward the temples. Don't let it come farther in than even with the centre of the eye. Put on plenty. Few bath or dressing table lights are as bright as theatre lobbies or restaurants, and you can stand a maximum of colour to hold your own when you appear in public.—By Alicia Hart.

A CHANGING
BEAUTY.

Golden curtains are now my ambition—long, soft folds of them, hanging before a tall window. When I say golden, I do not mean a tinsel-cloth, but something much less theatrical; I mean a thick silky satin of a true golden colour.

It is a stuff that glows like the precious metal but does nothing so ostentatious as to glitter; a stuff that is rich and soft, not bright and metallic; a stuff in which shaded lamplight will discover a thousand delights of fold and shadow.

My curtains will be a gracious, gleaming sweep of silk with which the light is in conspiracy to give me each evening a new trick of loveliness; yesterday a single fold in highlight; to-day the whole curtain gone liquid and molten because someone has tipped up the shade of the table-lamp; tomorrow—what? Something, at any rate, that will fill the eye and soothe the mind with its clear, quintessential beauty, something to give you the fleeting feeling that, in a world of ugliness and imperfection, you have caught for a moment and held in corner of your room one drop of the crystal liquid of perfection. Oh, well—aren't we idealistic? And in the meantime my golden curtains continue to drape their distracting beauty in a shop-window.—SYLVIA GREEN. In-Exchange.

THAT DOUBLE CHIN.

Slapping the surplus flesh beneath the chin is an excellent aid to reducing flabbiness, but it needs to be done scientifically. One beauty specialist advocates the use of a cloth soaked in toilet vinegar wrapped around the chin and a sharp patting given through this. To be really effective the pats should be sharp and quick; gentle tapping is of no use.

This is one of those "let's get together this afternoon" hats. It is a perky little tam of navy blue corduroy and trimmed with three flat feather fancies in shades of blue.

JAPAN'S POLICY

Japan's refusal to accept the Lytton Report, whilst it occasions no surprise, presents the League of Nations with a situation of the utmost gravity. It is, indeed, difficult to see how any adjustment of the issues is possible so long as this disposition to flout the League continues to be manifested. If we look closely into the Lytton Report, we shall discover a fact which is of the utmost importance in considering the Japanese attitude, a fact of which it is difficult for the Commissioners, or even for the League, to take cognisance. This is that a large proportion of the rights which Japan claims to be hers in Manchuria, and on behalf of which she so insistently invokes the sanctity of treaties, are founded on treaties made with China in 1915. Anyone with a passing knowledge of the recent history of China knows that the merest mention of those treaties has, since the time that the first whisper of their being negotiated leaked out, been sufficient to stir Chinese public opinion to the depths. For they were the treaties wrung from China after the presentation of the Twenty-One Demands. Their negotiation led to the initiation of student political activity—an activity which the nation has of late years had every reason to regret, but which at the time of its initiation was hailed by all sections of opinion as a salutary challenge to the machinations of a weak, unrepresentative and probably corrupt Government.

The Twenty-One Demands were presented to China by Japan in the early days of the European war. Great secrecy was maintained as to their contents, and for long after they had been made the subject of vigorous denunciation throughout China, Japan's colleague and ally, Great Britain, had to confess that she had no knowledge of them. What, however, had leaked out and been denounced turned out to be only too true. Japan had taken advantage of Great Britain's absorption in the Great War to enunciate an ambitious continental policy and had formulated it in the famous demands. Not only had the policy not been officially communicated to Great Britain. That country had been kept completely in the dark. The Chinese Government at Peking contained members who were in close touch with Japan, and was none too secure in its relation to its own country. It did not publish the facts that such demands were being presented or that negotiations were afoot. When, however, in response to pressure from Great Britain, which was at the time in a delicate position since, while it desired to maintain a fair attitude to China, it at the same time felt it urgent to retain the sympathy of Japan for the purposes of the war, Japan withdrew some of the demands, those relating to Manchuria were retained as the subject of discussion, and made the basis of the Treaties of 1915.

The Twenty-One Demands outlined measures by which in effect Japan would have secured the control of China. She sought special rights in Fukien, which, as being just opposite to Formosa, and from the Amoy region, had given its language to the Formosans, was of first importance in developing a continental policy. Similarly she sought special rights in Shantung, where she planned to succeed to the powers of Germany. And in relation to China generally, in addition to mining and railway concessions, she desired to secure exclusive powers in the administration of the police, the appointment of "advisers," and by the grant of rights of travel and residence for Buddhist missionaries to effect what the Chinese now call "cultural penetration" of the country, a penetration which however would not be confined to culture and religion.

As we have said, the majority of these demands were withdrawn in view of the violent opposition which they raised in China, and still more in view of the opposition of, in the first place Great Britain, and then of other Powers. It is, however, well to have in mind the general policy embodied in the demands, for it obviously throws light on a certain strong body of opinion in Japan, and indicates the lines of policy which, if unfettered by world opinion, it might pursue. The fact that the demands relating to Manchuria were largely sustained and made the basis on which, for example, Japanese subjects acquired rights of residence throughout South Manchuria, without limitation to treaty ports, yet retaining in full their extra-territorial rights, explains much of the attitude of Chinese authorities to those particular rights, and the continued difficulty of coming to an agreement. The treaties made possible the entry of large numbers of Korean settlers, whom the Japanese insisted on "protecting," however much they themselves may have been willing to place themselves under Chinese law, and so gave rise to constant friction.

Whilst the points stressed above may not have occurred to the casual observer, they must obviously be in the forefront of the minds of both China and Japan, and those who may be trying to understand the underlying facts of the situation must take them into account. Unhappily, Japan has entered the Geneva discussions in a mood which implies that she never had any intention of being diverted from her policies by anything which the Lytton Commission—a disinterested body of men, representative of five nations—might say in regard to the future of Manchuria. To put it mildly, this is not the spirit in which any country should approach deliberations of such serious import as those which opened yesterday in Geneva. Not only does it serve to heighten the impression that Japan is prepared to brook no in-

The Ben Line s.s. Bengloo, from Home ports via Straits and Manila, is due here on the 29th instant.

During the week-end, three cases of diphtheria, one of typhoid and another of meningitis (imported) were reported to the local health authorities.

Seized by a fainting fit as she was descending the stairs of her home at 25A, Shanghai Street, on Sunday, Tse Sau-king, wife of Tang Win-sang, a contractor, received fatal head injuries when she fell on to the footpath. She died yesterday morning.

Mr. Tashio, a Japanese, living at 25A, Kennedy Road, was bitten in both legs by a mongrel owned by a neighbour, Mr. Young Yau, yesterday, and had to go to hospital for treatment. The dog was removed to the Kennedy Town observation depot.

A reminder is given of the treat promised this afternoon, when the band of H.M.S. Suffolk will give a concert in Lane Crawford's Exchange Restaurant, commencing at 5 p.m. The last one proved a great success, and patrons will be glad to know that arrangements for further concerts of this kind have been made.

A purse contained among other things, some foreign notes to the approximate value of twenty-five dollars, has been handed to the manager of the Sincere Co. Ltd., by one of their employees who discovered the lost purse late on Saturday evening. It will be returned to the owner on application at the Manager's Office, Sincere's, provided a correct declaration of the contents be given.

C. N. STEAMER'S FATE

FENGTIEN TO BE BROKEN UP

The well-known China Navigation Co. str. Fengtien was handed over to a Chinese buyer, Mr. Echong, in Shanghai last week for purposes of breaking up, thus bringing to an end a career of 27 years.

Built by Scotts Shipbuilding and Engineering Co., Greenock, in 1905, the ship had a registered tonnage of 1,073, a length of 267 feet and breadth of 40 feet.

Her first skipper was Capt. J. C. Cogun, who was followed by Capt. John Meathrel and Capt. John Dewar, the latter subsequently signing on as master on no fewer than nine occasions. A familiar figure on the China coast thus disappears.

Performance in her schemes, but what is much more serious, it threatens the whole structure of the peace machinery which the nations of the world have so painfully evolved for the very purpose of adjusting disputes of an international character.

"She's terribly hard to converse with. Never been anywhere except that one trip to Honolulu."

THE PASSING OF THE HE-WOMAN

By DIANA STRICKLAND,

the well-known woman explorer and adventurer, who has twice crossed Africa alone and on foot, and who is author of "Through the Belgian Congo."

THE road to feminine emancipation is littered with many corpses, far from beautiful in death. At last the ugliest of all female bogies lies slain, and henceforward women may try to do their share of the world's work without running the risk of being branded as "plain" by all those who still obstinately maintain that woman's place is the home, and who have never troubled to see for themselves what an ultra-modern "adventuress" looks like. (It isn't fair, by the way, that a delightful word like "adventuress" should be applied to women of a somewhat unsavoury character. In my opinion, an adventuress is a woman who looks for adventure, and whether she finds it in commerce or travel, in aviation or in musty legal text books, she is a member of the gallant band who are helping to create a world fit for heroines.)

I admit that in the past critics had some cause for complaint. First of all we had the Bluestocking, and one only has to breathe the word to visualise trailing skirts, "sensible" shoes, steel-framed spectacles, and hair scraped back to a bun. Poor little Bluestocking, you must have been a wonderful woman! You cheerfully endured scorn and ridicule in a day when women were supposed to be incapable of any greater mental effort than was needed for needlework and gossip, but you might have been a little more popular if you hadn't been quite so indifferent to feminine fripperies.

Next came the Spinster, and she endured in various incarnations for quite a long time. Quite recently she has been trying to struggle back to favour once more in the form of the Bachelor Girl, but fundamentally she has always been the same. Her chief desire was to be mistaken for a man, so she cropped her hair, wore a stiff collar, dressed in the severest tweeds, and would gladly have donned trousers if only public opinion hadn't been so dead against it. As it was, there was no known way of determining her sex when she sat behind a table except by waiting till she spoke—and even that wasn't always a reliable guide!

But the most terrifying development of all was the He-Woman, and for some years there was a real danger that she would become a recognised feminine type. Everyone knows that all women have the ability to vary their size, shape, bulk, and contour at the dictates of Fashion, but these vagaries are purely temporary and can be discarded as speedily as they are assumed. There is all the difference between, let us say, a woman who toddles or strides according to the length of her skirt, and a woman who evolves into a definite type as standardised and as recognisable as the matron type or the fluff type. And that was the menace of the He-Woman.

It was not that she dressed mannishly, nor that her voice deepened or roughened. It was not even that she walked like a man or sprang in a chair in that careless and inevitable masculine way that is the envy of every feminine heart. These things are, when all is said and done, merely superficial tricks that could be mastered by any good actress. No; the danger was that she thought on masculine lines in-

BEVERLEY NICHOLS ON BRIDGE

I LEARNED bridge from an elderly lady who charged me a guinea an hour and has since departed from this life.

I learnt it for the same object that I learn everything, a sinister and an ulterior object. I wanted to go on a gilt-edged trip with a most agreeable party of millionaires, and they assured me that unless I could play bridge my life would be one long bore. And so I learnt bridge. At least, that was my sweet illusion.

The first thing that struck me about it was the curiously suggestive nature of its technical terms. My instructress would smile a withered smile at me and say something about "established minors." And, of course, I immediately thought of Jackie Coogan, for if anybody is an established minor, with a million pounds invested in gilded securities by his wise, old-world parents, it is Jackie Coogan. But my instructress did not understand.

After that she began to talk about "leading up to weakness." Needless to say, my depraved mind immediately conjured up the vision of a form of amorous conquest. You know what I mean—the bold, moustached villain ingratiating himself with the blushing damsel, using the attractions of his masculine features to dazzle the fluttering creature who had fallen under his spell. "Leading up to weakness!" If ever there was a phrase which came straight out of the pages of Jane Austen, it is this. But still my instructress "was not amused."

After that, I held my imagination in check. However, the game still continued to be a game—and as every good bridge player knows, (Continued on Page 9.)

BLACKMAIL BY BABY-FARMERS*UNMARRIED GIRL
VICTIMS*GROWING TRAFFIC

Blackmailing unmarried mothers is the latest device of the baby-farmer.

Mrs. Clara Andrew, founder and director of the National Children Adoption Association, said to a reporter:

"The traffic in babies is increasing every day and becoming one of the greater evils of London."

"I know of a man who asks £50 or even £80 from a girl to take her baby. If the girl cannot pay in a lump sum he takes it by instalments. One girl was earning £5 a week and he arranged to take £25, 6d. a week."

"If the girl falls in her payments there is always the threat of publicity."

CALLING ON EMPLOYER

"Then the man disposes of the baby to someone from whom he asks as much as he thinks he can get—£10 or £20. Whole families are living on this dreadful traffic."

"When the baby is disposed of it may get into the hands of one of those who are called upon by the mother's employer to try to get more money out of adoption."

"Some so-called 'adoption' organisations are nothing but agencies for buying and selling babies. Americans are often willing to pay a high price for fair-haired babies especially with curls. They call them the 'pure Anglo-Saxon type'."

"It would be a check on a growing scandal if all adopted children had to be registered. At present they are bought and sold more easily than motor-cars."

WALLER TRIAL CONTINUES

parcel. At about noon, a European sergeant of Police came in. He was in uniform and was followed by a Chinese detective. He would be unable to recognise them again. As soon as the sergeant came in he (the witness) went out.

LOAN OF MONEY

The sergeant said something to Ho Hong-sang. He returned in half-an-hour, but he did not see the sergeant or the detective. Ho Hong-sang asked him for a loan of $20. He lent Ho Hong-sang the money and then returned to his home. On October 12th a detective and Ho Hong-sang visited him and he was taken to the Police Station, where he identified Ho Hong-sang.

Shek Tin, Chinese sergeant-major of police, Yamat, gave evidence of visiting Wong Pak.

DETECTIVE'S STORY

Ling Sam, the Chinese detective who accompanied the accused, deposed of visiting Tai-po market for street cleansing on October 2nd and also to make arrests of street hawkers in the street after it had been cleansed. The sergeant wished to make some arrests and wishing to get into the adjoining street without being seen, went through the Po Sang Tong shop. Witness followed him. Inside the shop was a small room into which the sergeant went.

OPIUM IN HAND

Before witness entered he saw the Inspector holding Ho Hong-sang's hand. Ho Hong-sang was holding some opium. As he advanced into the room, the Inspector had the opium in his hand. The Inspector asked him to hold the opium saying "Detective come in here; you hold it." Witness held it in his hand and then placed it on the table. The Inspector then walked from the room and said to witness "Come out here." He thought the Inspector was going to arrest the man, but instead he said "£100, at least $50 if he has no money."

Witness: "When I heard that I said 'No; that cannot be done.' Mr. Fraser: What could not be done?"

BRIBERY MEANT

Witness: "By his words I understood him to be asking for a bribe. I refused to do that. It could have meant nothing other than a bribe. It could not have meant bail, because bail could not be fixed there and then. Bail must be fixed at the Police Station."

Mr. Fraser: "Could it have referred to anything else but a bribe in your opinion at the time?"

Witness: "No; he also said 'If the money is paid, you can let him off.' Those were his actual words."

Mr. Fraser: "Did he say anything else?"

Witness: "Yes. He said to Ho Hong-sang 'If you were arrested you would be fined several hundred dollars.'"

The case is proceeding.

GEN. SANJURGO'S GIRL-WIFE*TO LIVE NEAR HIS PRISON*CAREER ABANDONED

Senorita Maruja Taberner, the actress-wife of General Sanjurjo, leader of the Monarchist revolt in Seville last August, has abandoned the stage—refusing some very handsome contracts—to settle at Santa and be as near as possible to the Dueso Penitentiary, where her husband is serving a life sentence.

General Sanjurjo is nearly 60, while Senorita Taberner is only 21. They have a baby boy, who was christened Jose, after his father.

The general was a widower when he married Senorita Taberner. His son by his earlier marriage, Captain Sanjurjo, who was acquitted by the court that sentenced the father, has already been deported to Villa Cisneros, in Spanish West Africa.

CONVICT 52

General Sanjurjo was, it will be recalled, sentenced to death for his uprising against the Republic, but the sentence was subsequently commuted to one of life imprisonment by the President of the Spanish Republic, Senor Alcalá Zamora.

It appears that the general is fairly comfortable at the Dueso Prison. He has been given permission to walk about the gardens at certain hours and to buy and have his meals cooked at the prison canteen.

He is, of course, always in a convict's uniform.

He bears his convict number, which is 52, where he once wore his Medal of San Fernando, which is the Spanish equivalent to the British Victoria Cross.

This was awarded to him three times for bravery.

GANG OUTRAGE
IN U.S.*SOCIETY PEOPLE ROBBED

Philadelphia, Nov. 16. Mr. and Mrs. G. Harrison Frazier, prominent members of American society, and their maid were bound, gagged and threatened with torture at their home here to-day by two burglars who escaped with $9,000 worth of jewellery and cash.

The victims were unable to move. The burglars lighted matches and threatened to burn their feet unless they were told where the valuables were. Finally, learning of the location of the jewellery, they started systematic clearing out of clothing and other articles.

For two-and-a-half hours the three victims lay on the floor of the living rooms struggling to untie the ropes with which the robbers had bound their hands and feet.

Finally, Mrs. Frazier, after desperate attempts, managed to crawl to an ash tray, strike a match and burn the bonds which tied her. Immediately after, she released her husband and the maid and informed the police.

THE CUTTY SARKDELIVERED TO KWANGSI AUTHORITIES

The Cutty Sark V.R.-HAY, so often seen by residents of the Colony at Kai Tak, Repulse Bay and other resorts, left the Colony for Nanning on Tuesday last, 15th, inst. for delivery to the purchasers, the Kwangsi Government.

This beautiful British amphibious plane was piloted by Captain A. V. Harvey, Manager and Chief Test Pilot of the Far-East Aviation Co. Ltd., who was accompanied by Mrs. Vere Harvey and Mr. W. P. Dudman, the party arriving at Nanning in a non-stop flight, and were received by many officials and given a warm reception.

Captain and Mrs. Harvey returned to Hongkong from Wuchow yesterday in an Avian.

H.M.S. Falmouth, which upon arrival in Hongkong will become the yacht of the Commander-in-Chief, Admiral Sir Howard Kelly, left Falmouth yesterday morning for the Far East, via Gibraltar. The Falmouth is designed to replace H.M.S. Petersfield, which was wrecked at the beginning of this year.

The U.S. gunboat Ashville arrived from Amoy early this morning, and fired a salute of 21 guns which was returned by Blackhead Fort. Immediately afterwards the Ashville fired a salute of 17 guns to Admiral M.M. Taylor, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Asiatic Fleet, the salute being returned by U.S.S. Houston.

GOLF MASTERSTRAINING BOYS TO BE CHAMPIONS*EXPERT'S PLAN FOR SCHOOLS

Mr. R. Douglas Brook, a young man from Cambridge University, has returned from a long stay in the United States convinced that somewhere among our school-boys is a Bobby Jones, or perhaps several Bobby Joneses.

He has opened an academy for golf at Purley, Surrey, and if a more ambitious project he has in mind—that of getting big schools to institute regular courses in golf—is successful, schoolboys may eventually be able to take "honours" in golf examinations.

Mr. Brook has already had some experience of such classes in the United States. He started a class with four girls attached to Wisconsin University, and within a year or two it included more than 100 daughters of Chicago millionaires.

The idea was equally successful at the University of Michigan with a class of young men. It became rapidly popular, and now there is hardly a university in the United States that has not at least a visiting golf tutor, if not one permanently on the staff.

Plenty of Material

Mr. Brook, who was at Bradfield College before he went to Cambridge, says there is plenty of material at our public schools for making national golf champions.

"Boys are playing golf during school holidays at any rate," and therefore there is every reason why they should be taught to play correctly, even if they only play in their spare time.

"If they learned the rudiments of the game in classes such as I hope to institute at some schools in the South of England, they might have a better chance of becoming champions."

TALL HATS WORN
IN BATTLE*BRITON STOPS TRIBAL WARS

An amazing story of a Scottish doctor's adventures in the wildest part of the West African Republic of Liberia is told in a report received from Dr. M. D. Mackenzie, head of the mission sent last May by the League of Nations to inquire into the slavery question and the Kru tribes' allegations of ill-treatment by the Liberian authorities.

Dr. Mackenzie, who is a member of the League's hygiene section, says that when he arrived he found 18 tribes in rebellion against the Government, and that about 12,000 men, women, and children had been driven into the bush, where they were dying of starvation.

Accompanied by a Liberian official, two interpreters, and a small party of the Liberian Frontier Force, Dr. Mackenzie penetrated into the hinterland where no white man had ever set foot before.

Tracks had to be cut through the virgin forest, a task made dangerous by the warlike tribes, who were always ready to kill any man who ventured too far from the main column.

CHIEFS' PALAVER

Dr. Mackenzie summoned the paramount chiefs of the rebellious tribes to attend peace palavers.

When the chiefs arrived they were marshalled in front of a hut, and ate portions of kola nut from the blade of a safety-razor before taking their places at the council.

In less than two months Dr. Mackenzie had brought two of the tribes back to the coast.

Penetrating still farther into the bush, Dr. Mackenzie established contact with two other tribes, and is now able to report that "When I left the Kru coast all fighting had ceased."

Dr. Mackenzie made the first surveys ever carried out in those districts, and, travelling in a canoe, he also made the first map of the Fish-town River.

Most of the villages had their tame crocodiles, which, at a call from the natives, would leave the water and crawl inland.

There they were fed with chickens, after which a bottle of gin was poured down their throats. The crocodiles then complacently returned to their lairs.

Despite their warlike nature, a high standard of civility exists between the tribes, and no village is ever attacked unless it has first received timely warning. Even then, hostilities are perfunctory, because, after each shot with his blunderbuss, a warrior has to retire into the bush to reload.

It is a point of etiquette for the leading chiefs to go into the fray wearing tall hats, or other striking adornments.

After 100 years of slavery, however, the natives are now being rapidly emancipated.

WOMAN'S LEADING
CLIMB*FROM SINKING SHIP*CHANNEL COLLISION RESCUES

A young mother's perilous climb in the darkness up a way-laying rope ladder from a sinking ship to the deck of a liner 30ft. above was one of the dramatic incidents that followed a collision between the 11,867-ton Blue Star liner Afric Star and the 1,327-ton Norwegian motor-vessel Charente in the English-Channel off Dungeness.

The bows of the Afric Star, which was on its way to Buenos Aires from London, had penetrated the side of the Charente, and the liner was kept moving forward slowly to keep the two vessels interlocked while the work of rescue was carried out.

A young woman, wife of Mr. Manoel Orbea, a Spanish business man, was half-way up the rope ladder when the vessels began to drift apart. A spot light was showing on her.

FOUR ROPE LADDERS

The ladder swayed and could be heard by the men peering over the bow of the liner going thud-thud against the side.

There was a minute of suspense, and then they saw the slight figure near the top of the ladder. In a trice she was hauled aboard the Afric Star.

Officers and men crowded round Mrs. Orbea to congratulate her on her pluck.

To them she said in broken English, "Where's my baby?"

A seaman pointed over the side and the mother saw her year-old daughter Dolores held in the arm of a Norwegian officer, making the same swaying journey up the rope ladders. Soon mother and baby were together again.

Mrs. Orbea, who had escaped in her nightclothes, was fitted out with clothing by passengers in the liner.

Within a minute of the collision the officers and men of the Afric Star had thrown four rope ladders to the deck of the Charente.

Most of the crew of the Charente were taken on board the Afric Star. The rescues were completed in five minutes, and the greatest calmness was shown by those on board both ships.

Then a tug, summoned by wireless, arrived. An effort was made to tow the Charente to port, but she was so badly damaged that she sank. The three members of the crew who had stayed on board scrambled on to the tug a few moments before their boat disappeared. The rest of the crew were transferred from the liner to the tug and were taken to Dover.

The Afric Star made for London, arriving at Victoria Dock in the afternoon. A diver who inspected the ship is understood to have found serious damage under water.

PRIEST TALKS OF HIS TOTE*NO RELIGIOUS TEST FOR PUNTERS

A merry, white-haired little priest with the bluest eyes and the kindest of smiles motioned me to a chair in the presbytery of St. Ann's Church, Custom House, E., yesterday writes a Special Correspondent.

"You want to know about my tote?" asked Father Carless. "Certainly. But you are cold! I have a cure."

He filled one glass with whiskey and handed it to me, and as I sipped his glowing cure Father Carless talked about the tote which he has opened to the 1,200 members of his social club.

"Eight hundred bets—that's what we took last night," said Father Carless cheerfully. "My tote is a success!"

"And, so far, not a solitary indignant letter! Still, they will come," Father Carless laughed. "I am looking forward to opening the letters."

"THIS HYPOCRISY"

"I don't pretend that my tote is a means of bringing souls to me to be saved. I don't ask my punters what their religion is, and I am not going to censure any beliefs or their threats that they don't ask for."

"I believe in gambling in moderation, but I hate this awful hypocrisy which is gripping us."

"My tote is square. There is a special room for women, and wives can bet through their husbands."

"I hope that it will put a check to credit street betting, which is a bad thing because people wager beyond their means sometimes."

MAMAK HOCKEY MEDWAY'S FIRST DEFEAT

POLICE CONTINUE
TO WIN

[By "Bully-Off"]

H.M.S. Medway suffered their first reverse in the Mamak Hockey League yesterday, whilst the Police maintained a clean sheet in the "lost" column, by overcoming H.M.S. Tamar.

The Police were full value for their win by two clear goals against the H.M.S. Tamar at King's Park yesterday. The game produced a good standard of hockey and each side had an equal share of the play in the opening half although the Tamar forwards were guilty of not availing themselves of the many opportunities which came their way. The Police netted their first goal shortly after the initial bully and were unable again to pierce the opposing defence until a few minutes from time. The Police had everything their own way after the interval being continually on the offensive.

POINTS FOR ARTILLERY.

A similar score was registered in the game between the Royal Artillery and H.M.S. Medway at Happy Valley, the points going to the Artillery. For the Medway Evans in goal did some splendid work, relieving many difficult situations. Dunn shone in the attack.

Lieut. Laine played a good game for the Battery and netted the first goal in the opening half, while Harris, at left half, was outstanding. Palmer scored the Battery's second goal.

On the U.S.R.C. ground the R.A.S.C. defeated the 24th Battery by 4 goals to 1.

INTERPORT SHOOT

SHANGHAI DEFEAT SINGAPORE

Shanghai are a leg up in the triangular Interport shooting contest, in which the Northern Port, Hongkong and Singapore are taking part. Shanghai defeated Singapore after a thrilling struggle by three shots, their total being 926 against Singapore's 923. The Hongkong team will fire on December 14.

Only three new names appear, and it is quite possible that the final choice will find but one player in the team who has not before appeared in Test cricket.

According to Reuters, the Australian team for the match at Sydney on December 2, will be selected from:

W. M. Woodfull (Victoria).
D. G. Bradman (New South Wales).
S. McCabe (New South Wales).
A. Kippax (New South Wales).
T. Wall (South Australia).
W. H. Ponsford (Victoria).
W. Fingleton (New South Wales).
C. V. Grimmitt (South Australia).
H. Ironmonger (Victoria).
L. Nagel (Victoria).
W. A. Oldfield (New South Wales).
L. O'Reilly (New South Wales).
V. Y. Richardson (South Australia).

THE NEWCOMERS.

Of these only W. Fingleton, L. O'Reilly and L. Nagel are newcomers to Test cricket. Nagel yesterday made cricket history by putting out England in their second innings against an Australian XI for a paltry 60 runs, believed to be about the lowest score on record in unofficial Test games of this description.

Nagel's figures read:

O.	M.	R.	Wkts.
10	3	32	8

The remainder of the selected are all old hands. Charlie Grimmitt, who has been playing in Test cricket longer than any of the other nominees, will be the chief hope of attack.

STRONG TEAM.

It is fairly certain that W. M. Woodfull, who successfully captained the side in England in 1930, will again hold this important position, and there is no doubt that he will have a strong team at his command.

It is a particularly powerful batting side, with D. G. Bradman, Woodfull, McCabe, Kippax, Richardson, Ponsford, and Oldfield all safe for any amount of runs. Ironmonger, who will probably find himself in the final selection on the strength of his bowling, is the oldest player, being 45 years of age.

Grimmitt is 40, Richardson 38, Woodfull 35, Oldfield 35, and Ponsford 32. The six players have an average age of 37.5.

INTERPORTERS LEAVE FOR NORTH

FULL OF QUIET
CONFIDENCE

GOING ALL OUT
TO WIN

By
"Veritas"

If quiet confidence goes for anything, Hongkong are going to win—and win well—the Interport football against Shanghai on Saturday next.

It was really refreshing and most encouraging to meet the local team and their manager, Mr. W. E. Hollands, on board the President McKinley last night when they embarked preparatory to sailing early this morning for the Northern port. They refused to be despondent about last Saturday's game, and without the slightest arrogance, expressed, one and all, their confidence in bringing back the coveted Interport trophy from the Shanghai domain.

Said Manager Hollands, "This is the fifth time I have been with the Interport team and never have I felt so confident in their ability to win." Courageous words, which everyone will hope to be seen borne out in a few days time.

It appears that loss of studs to his boots was his chief worry in that match. "I finished the game with only one stud" he explained, "but have got things righted now, and am not expecting a repetition of the trouble in Shanghai for I believe the grounds there are not quite so hard as ours in Hongkong."

This problem of Bliss's opens up a rather interesting point. Are studs or bars to one's football boots preferable in Hongkong? With our very hard grounds there is no doubt that studs are more liable to be wrenched off, whereas bars right across the soles and heels remain permanent fixtures, and, on the whole, I think offer a better grip.

The team is due to arrive on Thursday, and they will, of course, have some practice among themselves before the big match.

SUGGESTION TO ZBW.

The Interport match takes place at the Canidrome on Saturday, and it is worth recalling that arrangements are being made for a running commentary to be broadcast from RUOK station.

May I suggest to ZBW that this presents an admirable opportunity for a relay which would be tremendously appreciated in Hongkong. So far as I understand it is quite possible for such a relay to be made.

On Sunday next the Hongkong team will meet the Rest of Shanghai, and, according to Mr. C. M. Manners, Chairman of the

that a further match will be arranged before the team leaves on December 2.

The team will take with them the sincere wishes of all sportsmen for a successful visit. Although the trials and the final composition of the side have aroused controversy, and a feeling in many quarters that the selectors might have made a better job of their task, I, for one, readily concede that the team is a good representative one.

THE MASCOT.

The mascot is a felix cat, with a long tail which sticks up—symbolic of the Hongkong team Mr. Hollands pointed out—and adorned around the neck with silk blue and white ribbons, the Colony's football colours.

There was a cheery air of optimism about the whole team. S. Strange was an early arrival and he told me that his army injury had completely recovered.

"I played four sets of tennis today," he pointed out by way of substantiating his assertion; and honestly I can conceive of no better test.

In fact, a most encouraging feature, and one which is keeping Manager Hollands, and his assistant, Mr. Y. K. Mok, happy, is that the Interporters are setting off as fit as fiddles. Bryant, who may be needed, also reports himself O. K. His leg injury, sustained during the Armistice Day match has completely recovered.

BLISS'S STUDS.

"Sonny" Bliss, all smiles and looking in the best of condition,

Rodger (Club, Capt.); Mullane (S.W.B.) and S. Strange (Club); Bliss (Kowloon); Pardoe (R. Artillery); and A. Duncan (Club); Cheng Shui-hong (S. China); Wong Mee-shun (S. China); Howe (Club); Suen Kam-shun (Athletic); and Baldry (Lincolns).
The reserves will be Lau Mau (S. China), Bryant (R. Artillery), and Leung Wing-chui (S. China).

SIGNIFICANT!

IN his opening lecture to students of the class in advertising at Heriot-

PRISON AND BIRCH

SEVERAL ROBBERY CASES BEFORE PUISNE JUDGE

Three men, Tang Yun-chiu, Cheung Wai-hin, and Li Tung, were sentenced to three years' imprisonment and twenty-four strokes of the birch by the Puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Wood) on a charge of robbery by two or more. Both pleaded guilty. Mr. T. S. Whyte-Smith prosecuted.

The robbery was committed on a house in Shek Wu Tong, which is about five miles South of Tai-O Police Station. Four or five men entered the house at 1 a.m. and surprised the inmates, three women. Mr. Whyte-Smith for the Crown stated that as far as he knew no arms were produced. The men were not men from that village but were from Samshuiipo. The first defendant was arrested on October 2 in Samshuiipo and the other two in Mongkok, five days later.

The robbers took away $389 worth of money and property, and of this, $300 worth of property was recovered.

Two Years for Larceny. Sentence of two years' hard labour was passed on Chan Sang, alias Li Mow, who pleaded guilty to six charges of larceny extending over three months.

The thefts to which the accused pleaded guilty were as follows: July 8 at Kowloon Tong, a clock from Mr. J. Cameron; July 20 at Kowloon Tong, an electric iron from Siu Ho Suk; August 22 at Kowloon Tong, a gold watch from Mr. C. Thomas; September 18 at Kowloon, a sewing machine from Mrs. Alice Burleigh; October 4 from Homuntin, 2 silk dresses from Miss M. Rajala; October 22 from Kowloon Tong—a gramophone from Mr. Harboto.

Mr. Whyte-Smith, prosecuting, stated that the thefts were rather clever thefts. The defendant's record showed that he had been convicted four times of larceny, once of house-breaking and once of assault. At the time he was arrested he was under police supervision, but had failed to report.

His Lordship passed sentence of four months on each of the six charges, making two years in all.

Another man, Tsang Kau, who was arraigned before the Court on three charges of larceny and three of receiving, was sentenced to one year's hard labour on his pleading guilty to the larceny charges. The charges of receiving were not proceeded with.

BUSY TIME AHEAD

ITEMS ON PARLIAMENT'S PROGRAMME

London, Nov. 21. The King, who with the Queen, returned to London from Sandringham, Norfolk, on Saturday, will tomorrow drive in state to reopen Parliament after its brief holiday since Thursday. Their Majesties will leave Buckingham Palace in a state coach drawn by eight bay horses with a royal escort of Life Guards along a route lined by the Brigade of Guards.

As the procession reaches the house of Lords, a salute of 41 guns will be fired in St. James Park.

The speech which the King will deliver from the throne in the House of Lords will foreshadow a heavy programme, legislative and otherwise, for the coming session. The principal bill before Parliament will be that dealing with unemployment insurance. It is probable that in references to international affairs the King's speech will give prominence to the disarmament question, while mention will doubtless be made of the world economic conference to be held in London early next year.

Among imperial matters, the new Indian round table conference, now meeting in London, will also be dealt with. After that conference has ended, probably about Christmas, joint select committee of both Houses of Parliament will be set up to consider the Minister's proposals.

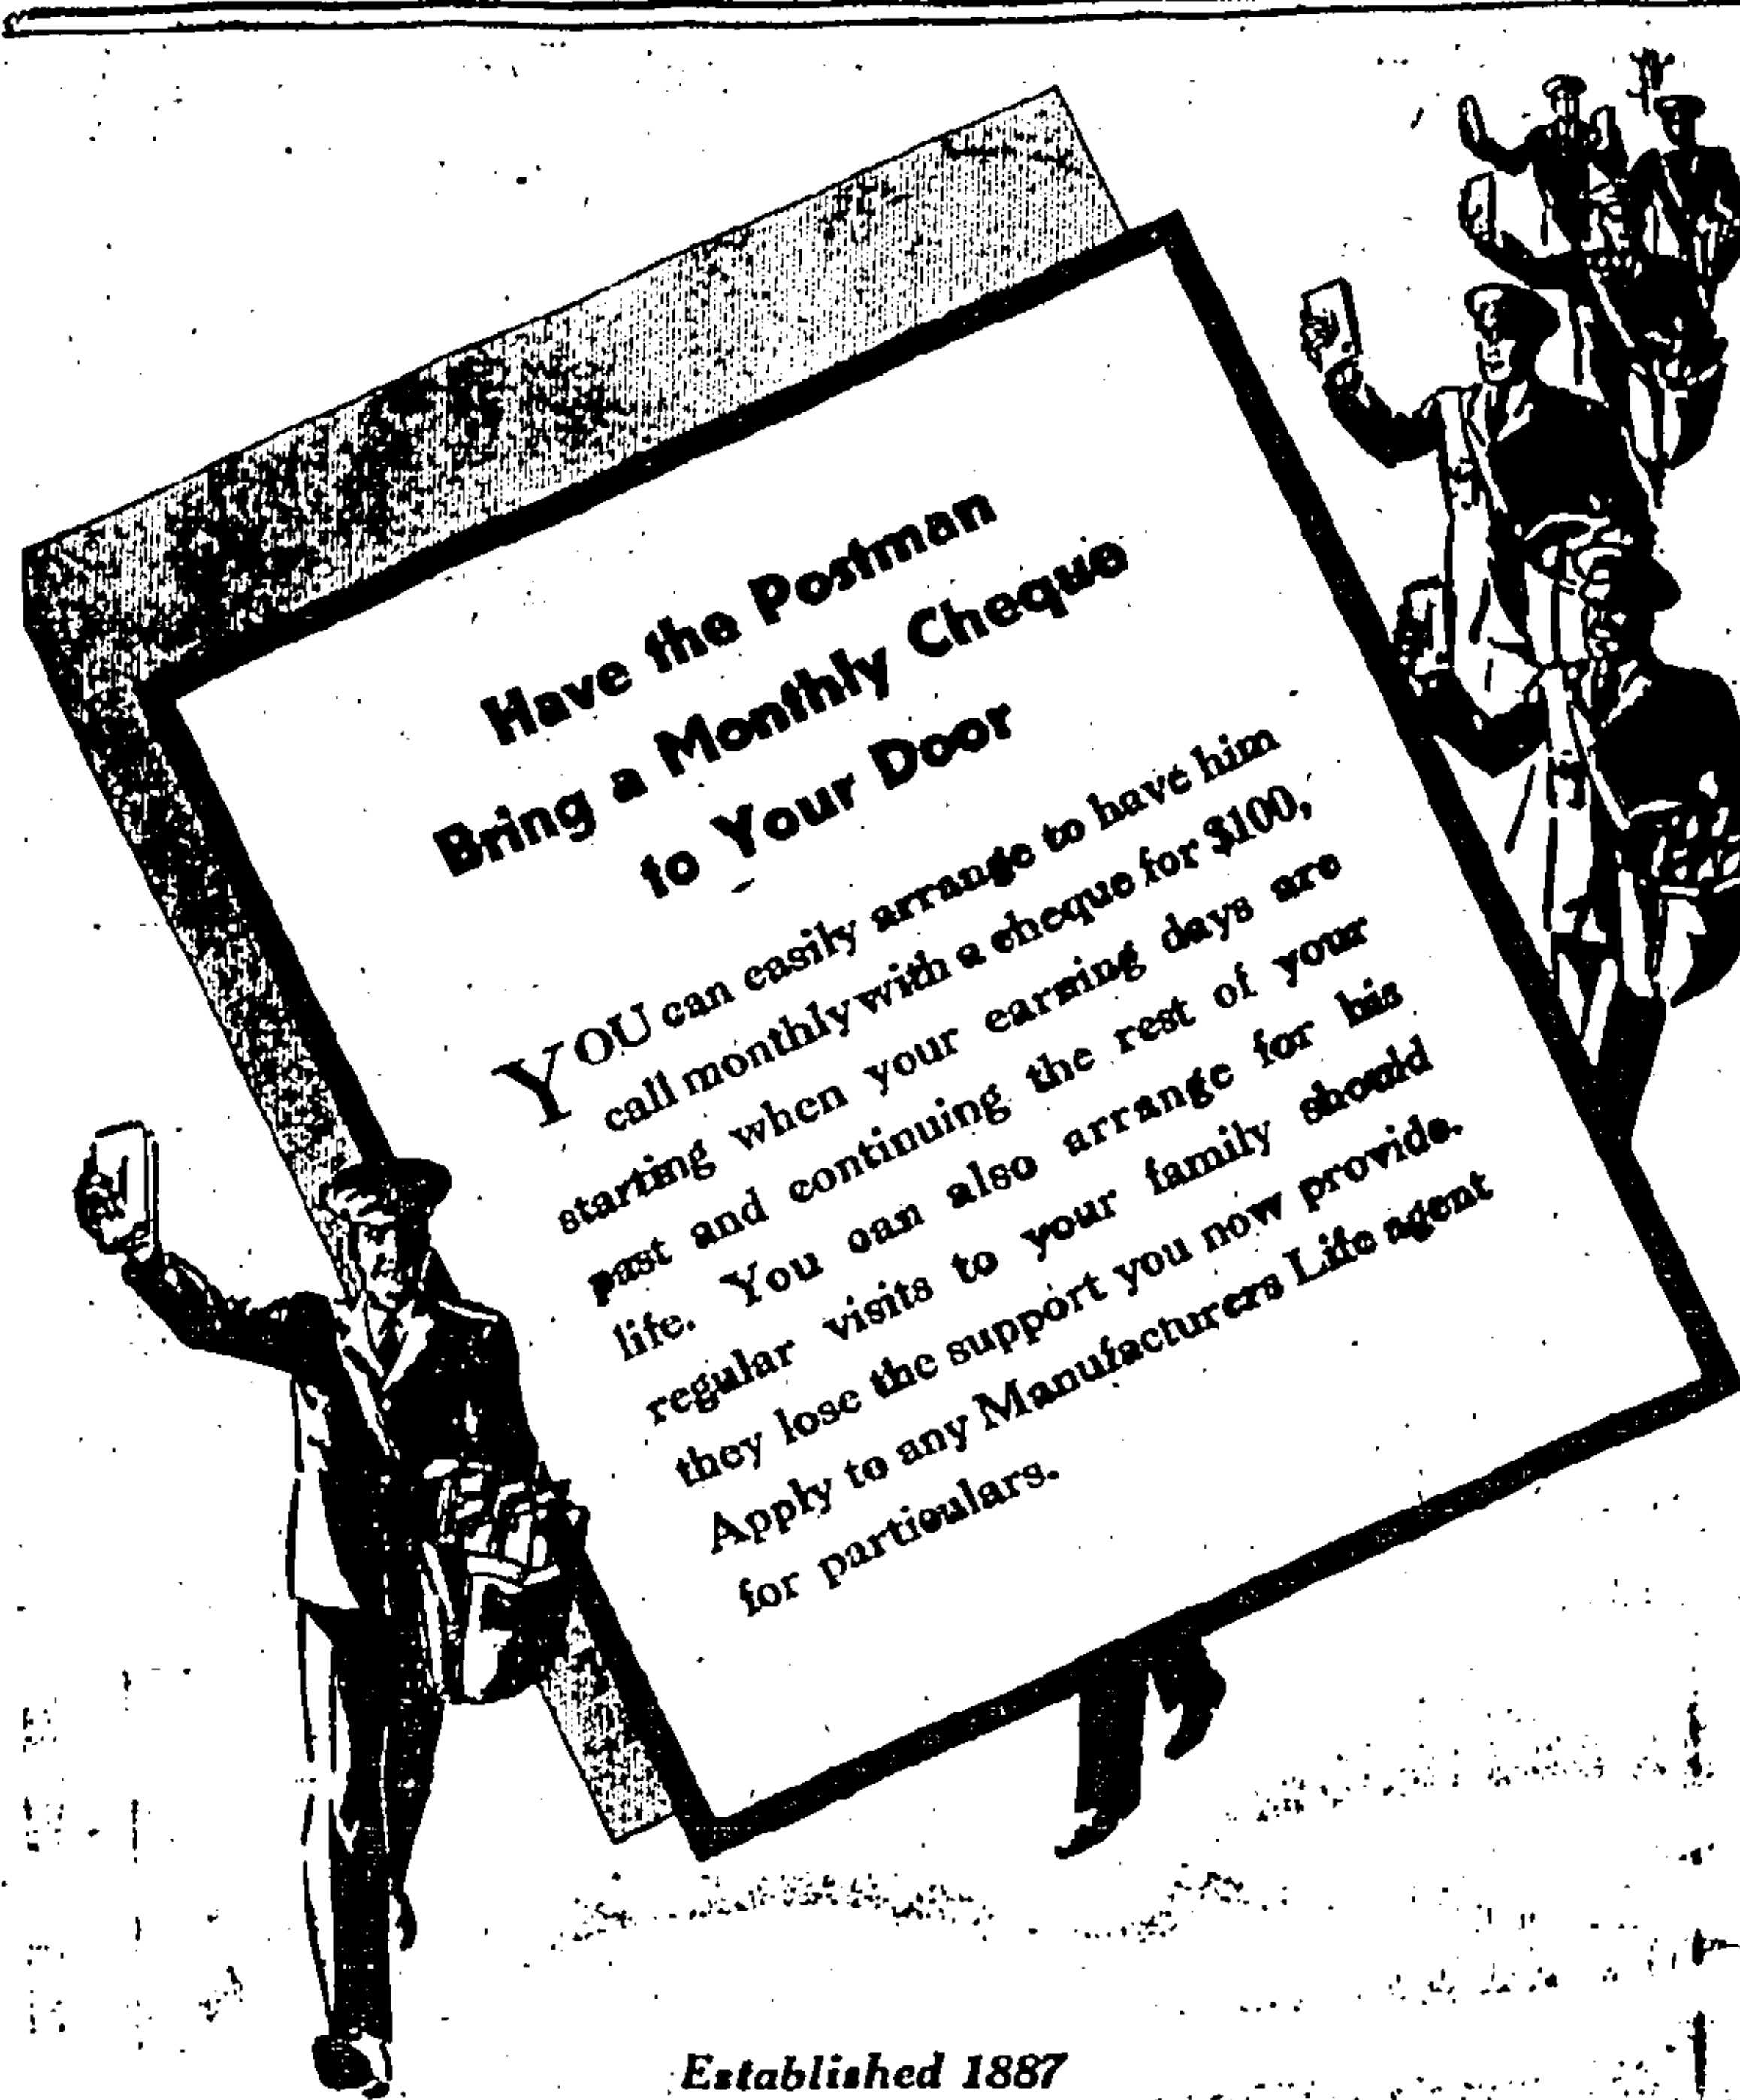

In addition to the unemployment insurance bill, many measures of a domestic nature, dealing with such subjects as rent restriction, land settlement, reorganization of agricultural industries and post office reforms will come before Parliament during the session.—British Wireless.

ALLEGED STABBING.

CHINESE CHARGED WITH WOUNDING WOMAN

Charged with unlawfully wounding a woman, Kau Chu Ping appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon. The case will be continued to-day.

Lai Choi Yung, victim of the alleged assault, gave evidence that she called at the defendant's home at 7 p.m. on November 4 and asked for rent owing by him. The defendant, who was playing chess with another man, made no reply. Fifteen minutes later she repeated her request. The defendant jumped to his feet and dragged her towards the stairs.

When they reached the ground floor her son arrived and remonstrated with the defendant. The struggle continued on the pavement outside. Suddenly the defendant drew a dagger and stabbed her on the right thigh.

Continuing, witness said in the confusion which followed the defendant threw the dagger away.

Cross-examined by Mr. Horace Lo who appeared for the defendant, witness denied that one of her sons had assaulted the defendant. Yang Leung Foo, who witnessed part of the affray from the street, said he saw the last witness lying on the footpath bleeding from the thigh.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lo, he admitted that the victim's son had told him to come to Court and tell his story.

Mr. Lo: Actually, you were never there.

Witness: I was there and went for the last witness's sons.

The case was adjourned until this afternoon.

ILLEGAL POSSESSION
OF TOBACCO.CHINESE FINED AT THE
KOWLOON MAGISTRACY

Before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon, two Chinese, Wong Hing and Liu Chi, were charged with being in unlawful possession of 490 pounds of dutiable tobacco in Mongkok on November 17.

Mr. E. W. Hamilton, Superintendent of Imports and Exports, appeared for the prosecution, while Mr. C. E. L. Grist defended the second defendant, Mr. J. B. Frantis. The proceedings were held in the presence of Messrs. Gilman and Company, the owners of a lorry on which the contraband was found.

Lum Ming, a Chinese Revenue Officer, gave evidence that about 7 a.m. on November 17, he saw a lorry at Tong Mee Street, Mongkok. On this lorry were the defendants, Li Chi being the driver. He noticed that the lorry was carrying eight sacks and a number of rattan baskets. On asking the first defendant about the contents of the sacks, he was told that they contained native cloth.

Suspecting that these sacks contained contraband, witness opened them and found they contained tobacco. The second defendant said the goods belonged to the first defendant. He also stated that the lorry was hired at Sheungshui.

Revenue Officer John Brown said that shortly after 8 a.m. on November 17, the last witness informed him that he had detained a motor lorry. Witness then went to examine the lorry and found the two defendants.

On questioning the first defendant, witness was told that he had been asked by a man to take the packages to Mongkok where he was to wait. The second defendant said a man—not the defendant—engaged him at Sheungshui for $7 to carry eight sacks to Mongkok.

After hearing the evidence, his Worship said it had not been proved that second defendant had guilty knowledge of the contraband and accordingly discharged him.

The first defendant was convicted and fined $5,000 or six months.

His Worship further ordered the tobacco to be confiscated.

With regard to an application by Mr. Hamilton for the confiscation of the lorry, Mr. Prentiss asked his Worship to reserve the point and to fix a date for legal argument.

His Worship adjourned this point for one week.

A valuable pomeranian dog, the property of Mr. Ho Kwong, was stolen from its owner's residence in Macdonald Road at 9 o'clock last night. The animal which was of pedigree stock was recently from Australia.

Two Chinese were seen carrying the dog away and running down Garden Road. Mr. Ho Kwong informed the police who immediately instituted inquiries.

SALE OF CROWN LAND.

PLOT PURCHASED AT THE
UPSET PRICE

Only one lot of Crown land was put up for sale at yesterday's auction at the P. W. D. offices. It comprised an area of about 6,820 square feet, situated at Ma Tau Chung. The upset price of the lot was $5,115. There was no bidding beyond this price, and the land was bought by Mr. Wong Pat-yen, of Messrs. Hazeland and Gonella.

ROBBERY ON LOCAL
RACE COURSE.TWO MEN CHARGED AT THE
CRIMINAL SESSIONS

How three Chinese held up and robbed a youth and his cousin on the Happy Valley race course, and how two were caught by men of the South Wales Borderers, was told at the Criminal Sessions yesterday afternoon before the Pui-nan Judge (Mr. Justice Wood), when Chiu Fuk and Chung Yee were arraigned on a charge of robbery by two or more on October 4. Mr. T. S. Whyte-Smith prosecuted.

The jury comprised Messrs. L. C. Grover (president), W. Weir, J. D. Butcher, P. M. Piquet, Pang Kok-sui, S. G. Green, and G. A. V. Hall.

Case for Crown.

Mr. Whyte-Smith stated that on October 4 a young architect's draftsman called Lum was on the golf course at Happy Valley with his cousin, Miss Chan. It was dark and the pair had gone there to do some running. Miss Chan ran around for a while and then sat down beside her cousin who was changing his boots. They sat down twenty yards from the inner ring of the race course not far from the Naval Pavilion. Lum would say a man in white, the man he identified as Fuk, and two other men in black came from the direction of the Jockey Club. The man in white and one of the others seized him by the wrists and twisted his arms behind his back. One of the men produced a small knife and then said "Your money or your life." He searched Lum and took from him a piece of rubber and two pencils.

Gave Up Articles.

The third man went up to Miss Chan and was about to search her. Her evidence was to the effect that when he proceeded to search her, she handed him her wrist-watch, her ring and what money she had in her possession (70 cts.). There was a discrepancy in the evidence on this point, because Mr. Lum would say he saw the watch being snatched from Miss Chan. She said she gave it up. The men then went away. Lum followed them at a distance, and when he got to the gate he saw three soldiers to whom he pointed out the accused men. The soldiers approached the men and they ran away. The soldiers chased them and caught them up. They were taken to the Police Station.

Prisoners' Statements.

When cautioned at the Police Station and charged, Fuk stated, "Last night I was there. Two men ran towards a man and woman because they were both clinging together and wanted to ask them for lucky money. The girl took off her watch and gave it to one of the men, and then both of them walked away. When that man (Lum) spoke to the three British soldiers the man who had got the watch ran away."

When prisoner appeared before the Magistrates' Court he stated that there were five persons on the race course. Nothing was found on him. He claimed it was a false charge against him.

The second accused stated, "I arrived in Hongkong on September 29. I came to look for a job. I could not get one and wished to return to my country in a few days time. I was walking on the race course. . . he arrested me. . . I have nothing to say." In a later statement he said there was nothing found on him and there was no proof at all that he took part in the robbery.

Evidence was given by Mr. Lum, who stated that the man who at-

WEEK-END FUNCTIONS

ATTRACTIVE FEATURES AT
THE PENINSULA HOTEL

Two outstanding functions took place over the week-end at the Peninsula Hotel, a special dinner dance in the Rose Room on Saturday night and a military band concert in the lounge on Sunday evening.

On Saturday the popular ball-room entertainers Hugo and Josephine gave a farewell performance. For the past six weeks they have delighted large audiences during the nightly dinner dances, and at special parties in the Rose Room, at which they have figured in artistic dancing, and last Saturday their display, like previous occasions, was enthusiastically received by the large number of diners present.

At this function, also, were introduced two talented Australian girl artists, the sisters Layne and Marie Mayne, who have scored a distinctive success with Shanghai's public at the Casino. Their opening performance of an entirely new repertoire of songs, dances and amusing patter won hearty applause. These performers have been engaged for a season by the management of the Peninsula Hotel, will appear nightly in the Rose Room during the dinner dance.

The concert on Sunday evening was provided by the band of the 1st. Battalion the Lincolnshire Regiment, under the conductorship of Mr. C. S. Frow. There was a good attendance who enjoyed a splendid musical entertainment.

MAIDEN VOYAGE

FRENCH MOTOR VESSEL ARRIVES TO-MORROW

The motor ship Aramis, which completes in the fleet of the Messageries Maritimes the series of the Munkoteers, will arrive in Hongkong to-morrow morning on its maiden voyage to the Far East.

The Aramis, which is a sister ship to the Felix Roussel and the ill-fated Georges Philippart, is of 21,400 tons displacement, and has accommodation for 100 first-class passengers, 133 second-class, and 102 third-class passengers. She is the sixth motor vessel in the company's service.

The Aramis was built by the Societe Anonyme des Forges et Chantiers de la Mediterranee, her dimensions being: Length 542.8ft., breadth 69.8ft., and 47.0ft. depth, with a gross tonnage of 15,500 tons.

The hull is divided into nine compartments by eight watertight bulkheads, five of which are provided with watertight doors, closing vertically and two horizontally; the doors are operated hydro-electrically on the Stone system, and the vessel can remain afloat with one of its compartments flooded.

There are 18 lifeboats and two motor boats provided with wireless. The life-boats have a seating accommodation for 70 persons each, and are carried on "Columbus" type davits. The rudder is of the Gertz type, and there are five anchors.

Propelling Machinery.

The propelling machinery consists of two main engines of 5,800 shaft h.p., each at about 118 revs. per minute, and were built by the Compagnie de Construction Mecanique, Societe Anonyme de Saint Denis. Each engine has 10 cylinders of 23.8in. bore, and a piston stroke of 47.27in., these being the characteristics of a large number of engines already constructed. The crank-shaft and couplings are enclosed in a watertight gear-case, with pressure lubrication. Each motor drives a three-stage air compressor, which also provides for the recharging of the starting air bottles.

Like the Georges Philippart, the latest addition to the M.M. fleet is painted entirely white, and presents a unique appearance with her two aquat square funnels. She is decorated according to Aegian art, while the smoking room is in the style of the Basque country, in the family d'Aramis had their castle. It is fitted with a swimming pool and tennis court.

The Compagnie des Messageries Maritimes cordially invite the residents of Hongkong to visit this latest addition to the M.M. fleet, while in port. The Aramis will be berthed at the Kowloon wharves to-morrow.

GENEVA SESSION

MR. MATSUOKA PUTS JAPAN'S CASE

Geneva, Nov. 21. This morning's session of the League of Nations Council was not productive of debate, the period being almost wholly occupied by Mr. Matsuoka who outlined Japan's case.

Mr. de Valera, Prime Minister of the Irish Free State, was chairman of the session which was called to consider the Lytton Report on Manchuria. Mr. de Valera eulogised the report and then called on Mr. Matsuoka, who spoke on the general lines of the Japanese memorandum.

Mr. Matsuoka suggested that the League condemn and outlaw the Chinese boycott on Japan and disclaimed the idea that Japan entertained bitterness and hostility against the Chinese. He declined to accept the Commission's report. He claimed that conditions in China had been a menace to the peace of the world for many years.

Dr. Koo Replies.

Dr. Wellington Koo, replying to Mr. Matsuoka, said that if all Mr. Matsuoka had said were true, Japan would appear to be a meek lamb in the teeth of ferocious China.

The Earl of Lytton and other commissioners listened to the proceedings.

Lord Lytton Broadcasts.

London, Nov. 21. Last night Lord Lytton, broadcasting from the League's own shortwave station, summarised the findings of the Commission and said that the outlook at the moment, while not bright, was not hopeless. He hoped that the storm advancing from Manchuria might be diverted by wise statesmanship into a harmless direction.

The success of the negotiations about to begin would be profoundly important for the peace of the world. Judicial investigation was a necessary step in the work of conciliation, and the persons most likely to know what was needed were those who had had most experience in international co-operation in postwar problems. —British Wireless.

The Commission was set up to promote the re-organisation of the mining industry by means of amalgamations. —British Wireless.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Dona sat huddled on the stone couch, her jacket pulled around her and her eyes blazing. "Take one step toward me and I'll—Dona's words tumbled out in an angry torrent."

"Scream?" Stan was smiling now.

"I'll do more than that!" "You might let me have one of the blankets from that bed. There are five on it." Stan stood with his hands on his hips, a wicked light in his grey eyes.

"Help yourself." Suddenly Dona realized that she had been making an unnecessary fuss. Her anger did not abate, however. She had been fooled and that in itself was an insult.

"And there's a trick combination to the bed," Ball went on. He took a step forward and Dona arose. He bent and whisked a blanket from the cot, then opened the others at the top. "You crawl in at this end. If a pine needle from the mattress sticks through you reach carefully down and pluck it out. I have never had more than four bother me in one evening." His eyes were very serious.

Dona refused to join the spirit of jest. She kept remembering that she hated this killer and that she wanted to see him suffer.

Stan took his blanket and wrapped it into a little roll. "You may turn the light down and blow it out," he said as he turned toward the opening. "Good night."

Dona refused to answer. She was sitting on the bunk, thinking deeply.

The scraping of Stan Ball's boots died away outside and the girl was forced to believe that he had gone. She got up and walked to the entrance. Ten steps down the stone corridor showed her what she wanted to know.

Overnight in the cave. On the cliff, his long legs stretched away up the mountain it had seemed across the entrance. He was smoking, drawing in slow, deliberate draughts of smoke and letting them climb upward of their own fancy. The black mare stood with her muzzle against his arm.

Dona watched this silhouette turn out to be the wronged and for a full five minutes, then she crept back to the bunk and lay down. She had to admit that Ball was a complex person. His lean jaw, his steely eyes and his tight mouth spelled all that she knew him to be, but there were times when the lips took on a half-smile and the grey eyes lighted deep down. The hunted, challenging wariness of his manner was the tell-tale trait that marked him for what he was. Dona had met Ball Ball's kind before.

Her musings led her nowhere and she fell to planning up, she could escape. Getting up, she examined the supplies. There was enough water for another day and possibly enough food for three meals such as they had eaten that night. Dona made up her mind to play Ball's game and see if he would not slip away on a foraging expedition.

She returned to the bunk and slipped off her boots and jacket. Without hesitation she slid into the bunk and snuggled down. She thought with grim satisfaction that she would spend a much warmer night than her captor. The cave was high up on the rim and the night would be cold to the point of frost.

Out at the entrance of the cave Stan Ball sat and berated himself for taking Dona prisoner. It had been a wild fancy, a decision of a second's consideration. He was always making them and afterward paying for his blunders. All he could hope to do by this step was to rouse the posse to renewed vigor and add more men to the already over-run woods. He had deliberately lessened his chances of escape.

But the thing that made him feel most guilty was keeping the girl overnight in the cave. On the cliff, his long legs stretched away up the mountain it had seemed across the entrance. He was smoking, drawing in slow, deliberate draughts of smoke and letting them climb upward of their own fancy. The black mare stood with her muzzle against his arm.

encaged husband.

He tossed aside his third cigarette and arose. Pating the black mare's neck, Stan walked to the edge of the shelf and looked down below. His cave rose like a little balcony above Pass Creek. Down in the canyon he could see lights moving and the night breeze carried the rumble of machinery to him faintly. Stan watched the scene grimly, almost sadly.

He came back and made a bed in the mouth of the cave, away from the chill wind of the upper hills. And he slept soundly, his six gun tucked under his leg. Daylight was an hour old before he woke. Sitting up, he listened for sounds from the cave. None came and he ventured outside.

Dona was still sleeping soundly. Her trim shoulder was exposed and it rose and fell gently with her breathing. Stan smiled a crooked smile and retreated to the bench outside. He was sitting in the sun when she finally made her appearance.

"Good morning," he greeted her, without moving.

She gave him a cold stare and flexed her arms.

Stan got to his feet and faced her. "We'll retire to the breakfast room at once. I've been starving for two hours."

Dona re-entered the cave without a word of protest. She had a plan and she intended to carry it out step by step. She sat down on the slab and watched Ball prepare breakfast. If she had expected him to be sparing of the thin slab of bacon she was disappointed. He cut it all up and spread it in the skillet.

The fire roared pleasantly and the bacon and coffee gave off an aroma that made Dona's mouth water. Stan produced a bit of flour and made four griddle cakes. He browned them to a turn and flipped two of them on Dona's plate. Then he smothered them with strips of crisp bacon. A steaming cup of black coffee completed the fare.

With a satisfied feeling, Dona devoured the cakes and bacon. At this rate they would be out of food with another meal. Nothing was said. Stan had dropped back into a moody silence. He was watchful, listening, and always his hand was near his belt. He was typically the outlaw, Ball from Illinois River.

MOONLIGHT, a picturesque mountain camp, a pretty girl and a dashing cowboy. With such romantic elements of course there's a love story in "Call of the West" by R. G. Montgomery. There's adventure and excitement too in this thrilling new serial.

After breakfast Stan let the dishes stand dirty. There was not enough water left to wash them. He sauntered out into the sunshine and stood watching the blue haze in the canyon below. Dona finally came out and sat on the other side of the entrance.

Noon came with a pleasant heat that was not oppressive but that warmed deeply. Dona had busied herself with a careful check of the country below. She was sure she had spotted the Pass Creek trail and that she could go to it if she escaped. Ball had stayed close enough to her so that any attempt to slip away would have been foolish.

He halted in making a turn across the little shelf and stood looking down at her. His eyes were expressionless and his lips formed a straight line.

"I'll make a bargain," he began.

"And I won't listen," she cut in.

"I have food cached down the trail a half mile. I'll get it and replenish our supply of water. You need not go if you will promise to be here when I return. If you do not care to promise I'll take you along." His eyes searched her face rapidly.

Dona met his gaze squarely. Here was a chance. She did not owe this killer a promise kept. He did not deserve it. She got to her feet slowly. "I'll stay here."

she answered. "But I will get you if I can."

"You will be here when I get back?" Stan held her eyes with his level gaze.

"I promise," Dona met his challenging glance fairly.

Without another word he saddled the black mare and rode out through the cleft of rock. Dona ran inside the cave and began to look about for any article she might need. Her eyes fell on the picture in the rock niche. She pulled it down and stuffed it under her jacket. Suddenly a thought struck her. Suppose Ball was only testing her and would be hiding just off the ledge? Then, too, she had promised him that she would stay. Her pride and sense of sportmanship made her hesitate to slip away by breaking a promise. She wanted to capture Ball by her own efforts. If she slipped away he would leave the cave and make his escape, fearing she would lead the posse to it.

Dona walked slowly out into the sunshine. She sat down and thought a long time. Finally a smile curved her lips. She got up and returned to the cave. Shoving the nail containing the remaining water over the still hot coals, she prepared to wash the dishes.

She was busy drying them on a torn cloth when a step warned her that Ball was returning. She faced about and her fingers went limp. The burly form of Swerzin towered against the light from the opening. He held two guns ready.

"So!" he snarled between clenched teeth.

Accusing a prominent Parisian of slandering his wife, John Hopper, above, fought a pistol duel and wounded his opponent. Then, when his rival's second protested, Hopper met him on the field of honour near Paris. Hopper won that, too. His two opponents are expected to recover.

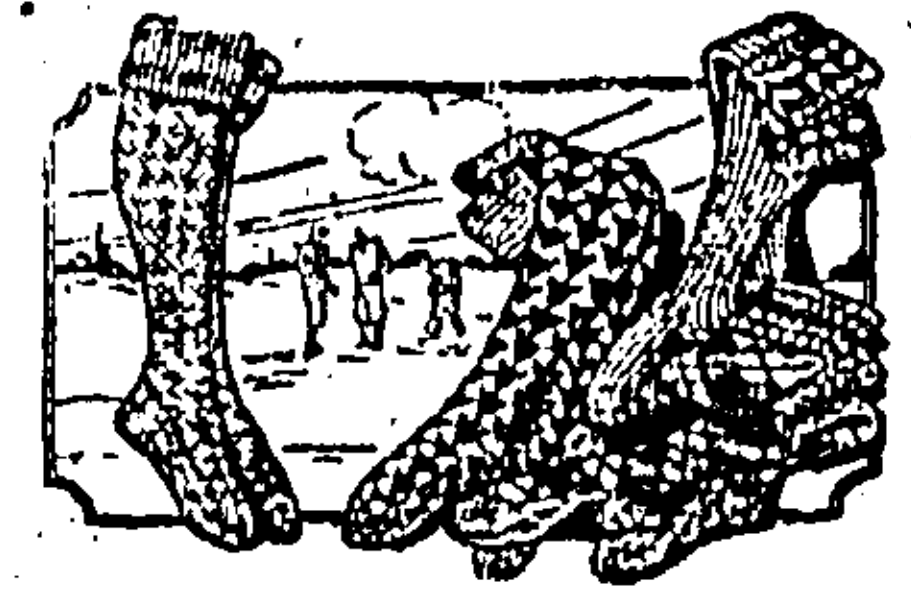

Jimmy Walker made a spectacular return to New York from his recent European trip. Photo shows the scene at the pier when he arrived.

It was in the Grande Bretagne Hotel, pictured at top, in Athens, that Samuel Insull, bankrupt public utilities magnate, was arrested at the request of American authorities. Until the question of his extradition is decided, he will remain technically in the custody of Colonel Remantis, lower left, chief of police in Athens. A coded cablegram sent to Insull in Athens indicated that the fugitive may have intended to seek the aid of Sir Basil Zaharoff, lower right, the Anglo-Greek financier.

SOLDIER SENT TO PRISON

CIGARETTE CASE THEFT

"You had your chance when you were bound over and you did not take it,"
With these words Mr. Wynne-Jones, at the Central Court this morning, refused the option of a fine and sentenced Pte. James Dempsey, of the R.A.M.C., a native of Glasgow, to two months' hard labour for the theft of a silver cigarette case, valued at $25, the property of Windsor Jewellery Mart, Gloucester Building Arcade. The prosecuting police officer, Det. Sgt. Macdonald, stated that Dempsey called at the shop on the afternoon of November 12, and asked to be shown a range of cigarette cases. He made his selections, and asked that they be sent to Captain Burke, at the Indian Military Hospital at Kowloon.
Just before leaving, he picked up the case now the subject of the charge, and remarked that he would take that with him, while leaving the other to be delivered at the address given.
The messenger sent with the article, could not find Captain Burke, but the next day, when Mr. Windsor went there, he was there. Immediately Mr. Windsor saw Captain Burke, he knew that he had been tricked.

CONFESION MADE.

Police later interviewed Dempsey at the Bowen Road Military Hospital, and from that date he was held in military detention until yesterday when he offered to make a confession. He then conducted the police to the Wing Nam Jewellery store where he had sold the cigarette case for $7.
Sergeant Macdonald said that in the prisoner's favour was the fact that he had assisted the police.
Dempsey's Commanding Officer, present in Court, informed the Magistrate that his record was not very good, as within the past 12 months he had come under police observation on two previous occasions, but had not been charged owing to insufficient evidence. He had also a conviction in 1930 for larceny, and was bound over.
The officer mentioned that Dempsey was due to go home during the trooping season, either on February 24 or March 29.

LENIENCY PLEA.

In answer to the charge, Dempsey said he had had a few drinks on that day, and was now very sorry for what he had done. He had a wife in England who, he said, would suffer through his being sent to prison. He now realised the gravity of his act, but asked for leniency in view of his having made a clean breast of the affair.
The Magistrate reminded Dempsey that he had had his chance in the leniency accorded him on the previous conviction, but had not availed himself of it. He would be now sent to prison for two months.
On Sergeant Macdonald stating that an offer of $7 had been made by Dempsey for the redemption of the cigarette case from the jewellery shop, his Worship made an order directing that this amount be turned over for the purpose. In default, the prisoner was to serve an additional seven days.

SOCIETY PEOPLE ROBBED

Philadelphia, Nov. 16.
Mr. and Mrs. G. Harrison Frazier, prominent members of American society, and their maid were bound, gagged and threatened with torture at their home here to-day by two burglars who escaped with $9,000 worth of jewellery and cash.
The victims were unable to move. The burglars lighted matches and threatened to burn their feet unless they were told where the valuables were. Finally, learning of the location of the jewellery, they started systematic clearing out of clothing and other articles.
For two-and-a-half hours the three victims lay on the floor of the living rooms struggling to untie the ropes with which the robbers had bound their hands and feet.
Finally, Mrs. Frazier, after desperate attempts, managed to crawl to an ash tray, strike a match and burn the bonds which tied her. Immediately after, she released her husband and the maid and informed the police.

THE WORLD
OF WOMEN

Black to flatter your figure, pink to flatter your face, is the all-together enchanting combination in this glamorous hostess gown. In addition to the happy union of colours there is glamour in the cut of the garment.

Tight-fitting, sleek and alluring is the dull-surfaced black velvet gown itself. Graceful, feminine and original is the addition of pink crepe which makes a high front neckline and a couple of cascading drapes in the back.

As a matter of fact, the pink crepe seems to begin with the flowing drape that swishes off the left shoulder, continue around in front to make the smart front neckline, tucked under the right sleeve and flow on down the back, stopping to be tucked under the black at the waistline and then continue to form a little train in the back.

The short, tight sleeves of the black velvet and the unusual one-side low decollete in the back are two more points of interest. Both help to give this hostess gown something that in turn makes the woman who wears it romantic.

BEAUTY HINTS.

Evening Make-Up More Colourful.

It is the "make-up you wear with them that gives allure to many of the evening ensembles this winter.

Before you apply your make-up, be sure that your skin is in a condition to receive it properly and do its best by it.

The foundation you use depends on the condition of your skin. The great majority of women over 20 have skins that are dry, rather than oily. Therefore, a heavy, delicious foundation cream is best for evening.

If you can't manage the moist, luscious look they give your skin, use a lighter, oily finishing cream. If you happen to have an oily skin, pick a lotion that smooths the skin without adding oil to it. But remember, the skin with a moist look is the one that looks youngest under electric lights.

One little do luxe touch you might give yourself for special occasions is to use an ice pack before you put on this cream. It tightens up the skin again, if your hot bath has in any way made it lax and opened its pores. The moisture of the ice, plus the rich finishing cream, is what gives that young look all women want.

Your rouge goes on first of all, after your skin has been treated to its evening creaming.

Use cream rouge, by all means, for powder rouge has a way of making your skin look dry. Remember, too, that the rouge you use of an evening can be brighter, can be used more lavishly and can give a much more artificial effect in evening than you can stand in the daytime.

Put your evening rouge on your cheek-bones, patting it out toward the temples. Don't let it come further in than even with the centre of the eye. Put on plenty. Few bath or dressing table lights are as bright as theatre lobbies or restaurants, and you can stand a maximum of colour to hold your own when you appear in public.—By Alicia Hart.

A CHANGING
BEAUTY.

Golden curtains are now my ambition—long, soft folds of them, hanging before a tall window. When I say golden, I do not mean a tinsel-cloth, but something much less theatrical; I mean a thick silky satin of a true golden colour.

It is a stuff that glows like the precious metal but does nothing so ostentatious as to glitter; a stuff that is rich and soft, not bright and metallic; a stuff in which shaded lamplight will discover a thousand delights of fold and shadow.

My curtains will be a gracious, gleaming sweep of silk with which the light is in conspiracy to give me each evening a new trick of loveliness; yesterday a single fold in highlight; to-day the whole curtain gone liquid and molten because someone has tipped up the shade of the table-lamp; tomorrow—what? Something, at any rate, that will fill the eye and soothe the mind with its clear, quintessential beauty, something to give you the fleeting feeling that, in a world of ugliness and imperfection, you have caught for a moment and held in corner of your room one drop of the crystal liquid of perfection. Oh, well—aren't we idealistic? And in the meantime my golden curtains continue to drape their distracting beauty in a shop-window.—SYLVIA GREEN, In-Exchange.

THAT DOUBLE CHIN.

Slapping the surplus flesh beneath the chin is an excellent aid to reducing flabbiness, but it needs to be done scientifically. One beauty specialist advocates the use of a cloth soaked in toilet vinegar wrapped around the chin and a sharp patting given through this. To be really effective the pats should be sharp and quick; gentle tapping is of no use.

This is one of those "let's get together this afternoon" hats. It is a perky little tam of navy blue corduroy and trimmed with three flat feather fanes in shades of blue.

JAPAN'S POLICY

Japan's refusal to accept the Lytton Report, whilst it occasions no surprise, presents the League of Nations with a situation of the utmost gravity. It is, indeed, difficult to see how any adjustment of the issues is possible so long as this disposition to flout the League continues to be manifested. If we look closely into the Lytton Report, we shall discover a fact which is of the utmost importance in considering the Japanese attitude, a fact of which it is difficult for the Commissioners, or even for the League, to take cognisance. This is that a large proportion of the rights which Japan claims to be hers in Manchuria, and on behalf of which she so insistently invokes the sanctity of treaties, are founded on treaties made with China in 1915. Anyone with a passing knowledge of the recent history of China knows that the merest mention of those treaties has, since the time that the first whisper of their being negotiated leaked out, been sufficient to stir Chinese public opinion to the depths. For they were the treaties wrung from China after the presentation of the Twenty-One Demands. Their negotiation led to the initiation of student political activity—an activity which the nation has of late years had every reason to regret, but which at the time of its initiation was hailed by all sections of opinion as a salutary challenge to the machinations of a weak, unrepresentative and probably corrupt Government.

The Twenty-One Demands were presented to China by Japan in the early days of the European war. Great secrecy was maintained as to their contents, and for long after they had been made the subject of vigorous denunciation throughout China, Japan's colleague and ally, Great Britain, had to confess that she had no knowledge of them. What, however, had leaked out and been denounced turned out to be only too true. Japan had taken advantage of Great Britain's absorption in the Great War to enunciate an ambitious continental policy and had formulated it in the famous demands. Not only had the policy not been officially communicated to Great Britain. That country had been kept completely in the dark. The Chinese Government at Peking contained members who were in close touch with Japan, and was none too secure in its relation to its own country. It did not publish the facts that such demands were being presented or that negotiations were afoot. When, however, in response to pressure from Great Britain, which was at the time in a delicate position since, while it desired to maintain a fair attitude to China, it at the same time felt it urgent to retain the sympathy of Japan for the purposes of the war, Japan withdrew some of the demands, those relating to Manchuria were retained as the subject of discussion, and made the basis of the Treaties of 1915.

The Twenty-One Demands outlined measures by which in effect Japan would have secured the control of China. She sought special rights in Fukien, which, as being just opposite to Formosa, and, from the Amoy region, had given its language to the Formosans, was of first importance in developing a continental policy. Similarly she sought special rights in Shantung, where she planned to succeed to the powers of Germany. And in relation to China generally, in addition to mining and railway concessions, she desired to secure exclusive powers in the administration of the police, the appointment of "advisers," and by the grant of rights of travel and residence for Buddhist missionaries to effect what the Chinese now call "cultural penetration" of the country, a penetration which however would not be confined to culture and religion.

As we have said, the majority of these demands were withdrawn in view of the violent opposition which they raised in China, and still more in view of the opposition of, in the first place Great Britain, and then of other Powers. It is, however, well to have in mind the general policy embodied in the demands, for it obviously throws light on a certain strong body of opinion in Japan, and indicates the lines of policy which, if unfettered by world opinion, it might pursue. The fact that the demands relating to Manchuria were largely sustained and made the basis on which, for example, Japanese subjects acquired rights of residence throughout South Manchuria, without limitation to treaty ports, yet retaining in full their extra-territorial rights, explains much of the attitude of Chinese authorities to those particular rights, and the continued difficulty of coming to an agreement. The treaties made possible the entry of large numbers of Korean settlers, whom the Japanese insisted on "protecting," however much they themselves may have been willing to place themselves under Chinese law, and so gave rise to constant friction.

Whilst the points stressed above may not have occurred to the casual observer, they must obviously be in the forefront of the minds of both China and Japan, and those who may be trying to understand the underlying facts of the situation must take them into account. Unhappily, Japan has entered the Geneva discussions in a mood which implies that she never had any intention of being diverted from her policies by anything which the Lytton Commission—a disinterested body of men, representative of five nations—might say in regard to the future of Manchuria. To put it mildly, this is not the spirit in which any country should approach deliberations of such serious import as those which opened yesterday in Geneva. Not only does it serve to heighten the impression that Japan is prepared to brook no in-

C. N. STEAMER'S FATE

FENGTIEN TO BE BROKEN UP

The well-known China Navigation Co. steamer Fengtien was handed over to a Chinese buyer, Mr. Echong, in Shanghai last week for purposes of breaking up, thus bringing to an end a career of 27 years.

Built by Scotts Shipbuilding and Engineering Co., Greenock, in 1905, the ship had a registered tonnage of 1,073, a length of 207 feet and breadth of 40 feet.

Her first skipper was Capt. J. C. Cogun, who was followed by Capt. John Meathrel and Capt. John Dewar, the latter subsequently signing on as master on no fewer than nine occasions. A familiar figure on the China coast thus disappears.

It was not that she dressed manly, nor that her voice deepened or roughened. It was not even that she walked like a man or sprawled in a chair in that careless and inimitable masculine way that is the envy of every feminine heart. These things are, when all is said and done, merely superficial tricks that could be mastered by any good actress. No; the danger was that she thought on masculine lines in-the well-known woman explorer and adventurer, who has twice crossed Africa alone and on foot, and who is author of "Through the Belgian Congo."

THE PASSING OF THE HE-WOMAN

By DIANA STRICKLAND.

THE road to feminine emancipation is littered with many corpses, far from beautiful in death. At last the ugliest of all female bogies lies slain, and henceforward women may try to do their share of the world's work without running the risk of being branded as "plain" by all those who still obstinately maintain that woman's place is the home, and who have never troubled to see for themselves what an ultra-modern "adventuress" looks like. (It isn't fair, by the way, that a delightful word like "adventuress" should be applied to women of a somewhat unsavoury character. In my opinion, an adventuress is a woman who looks for adventure, and whether she finds it in commerce or travel, in aviation or in musty legal text books, she is a member of the gallant band who are helping to create a world fit for heroines.)

I admit that in the past critics had some cause for complaint. First of all we had the Bluestocking, and one only has to breathe the word to visualise trailing skirts, "sensible" shoes, steel-framed spectacles, and hair scraped back to a bun. Poor little Bluestocking, you must have been a wonderful woman! You cheerfully endured scorn and ridicule in a day when women were supposed to be incapable of any greater mental effort than was needed for needlework and gossip, but you might have been a little more popular if you hadn't been quite so indifferent to feminine trifles.

Next came the Spinster, and she endured in various incarnations for quite a long time. Quite recently she has been trying to struggle back to favour once more in the form of the Bachelor Girl, but fundamentally she has always been the same. Her chief desire was to be mistaken for a man, so she cropped her hair, wore a stiff collar, dressed in the severest tweeds, and would gladly have donned trousers if only public opinion hadn't been so dead against it. As it was, there was no known way of determining her sex when she sat behind a table except by waiting till she spoke—and even that wasn't always a reliable guide!

But the most terrifying development of all was the He-Woman, and for some years there was a real danger that she would become a recognised feminine type. Everyone knows that all women have the ability to vary their size, shape, bulk, and contour at the dictates of fashion, but these vagaries are purely temporary and can be discarded as speedily as they are assumed. There is all the difference between, let us say, a woman who toddles or strides according to the length of her skirt, and a woman who evolves into a definite type as standardised and as recognisable as the matron type or the fluff type. And that was the menace of the He-Woman.

It was not that she dressed manly, nor that her voice deepened or roughened. It was not even that she walked like a man or sprawled in a chair in that careless and inimitable masculine way that is the envy of every feminine heart. These things are, when all is said and done, merely superficial tricks that could be mastered by any good actress. No; the danger was that she thought on masculine lines in-

BEVERLEY NICHOLS' ON BRIDGE

I LEARNED bridge from an elderly lady who charged me a guinea an hour and has since departed from this life.

I learnt it for the same object that I learnt everything, a sinister and an ulterior object. I wanted to go on a gilt-edged trip with a most agreeable party of millionaires; and they assured me that unless I could play bridge my life would be one long bore. And so I learnt bridge. At least, that was my sweet illusion.

The first thing that struck me about it was the curiously suggestive nature of its technical terms. My instructress would smile a withered smile at me and say something about "established minors." And, of course, I immediately thought of Jackie Coogan, for if anybody is an established minor, with a million pounds invested in gilt-edged securities by his wise, old-world parents, it is Jackie Coogan. But my instructress did not understand.

After that she began to talk about "leading up to weakness." Needless to say, my depraved mind immediately conjured up the vision of a form of amorous conquest. You know what I mean—the bold, moustached, villain ingratiating himself with the blushing damsel, using the attractions of his masculine features to dazzle the fluttering creature who had fallen under his spell. "Leading up to weakness!" If ever there was a phrase which came straight out of the pages of Jane Austen, it is this. But still my instructress "was not amused."

After that, I held my imagination in check. However, the game still continued to be a game—and, as every good bridge player knows, (Continued on Page 9.)

"She's terribly hard to converse with. Never been anywhere except that one trip to Honolulu."

UNUSUAL COURT CASE

INTERFERING WITH JUSTICE

WOMAN CHARGED

An alleged attempt to prevent a complainant from giving evidence in a case against a man and a woman was unfolded before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning when Detective Sergeant D. Fitches charged the wife of the man on two counts—with interfering with the cause of justice and with false imprisonment.

Mr. Peter Sin appeared for the defendant and entered a plea of not guilty.

The original case came before his Worship yesterday afternoon and according to Detective Sergeant Fitches, the complainant in that case went to the Police Station on Saturday last to lodge his complaint, as a result of which certain persons were detained, including the husband of the present defendant. Again the following day the complainant went to Police Headquarters and when he left at 5 p.m. he was instructed to return the following day to attend Police Court.

The complainant went to Yau-mai and, after having had his evening meal at a tea house, returned to his own residence. On the way, he met two men, Man Chuen and Man Chang, who questioned him about the case which he had reported to the police. The complainant told the men that the prisoners were detained and he was required to give evidence on the following day.

DEATH THREATS.

Nothing further occurred, and the complainant continued on his way to his house at 77, Wai Ching Street. Just as he ascended the stairs, the voice of Man Chang called him. He went to the street and was instantly surrounded by a number of men. He was warned that if he raised the alarm he would be struck to death. The men escorted him to a tea house and there asked him not to appear in Police Court against the two prisoners, one of whom was the present defendant's husband.

The complainant replied that he had to attend Police Court, as it would be serious if he did not. The men then threatened to take him away and, leading him by the arms, took him to the Wo Ping Boarding House where they rented room No. 125, which was booked in the name of Man Yau. Two members of the gang remained constantly in the room with the complainant, who was told that he would have to settle down there and would be stabbed if he raised the alarm.

The boarding house folks corroborate the man's statement in that there were always two or three men in the room, including the complainant and that about five members of the gang constantly went in and out of the place.

WOMAN'S WARNING.

On the following day the defendant in the present case appeared at the boarding house and asked for the room which was occupied by her friend, Man. A folk took her to No. 125 and, on looking inside, she said that that was the correct room. He went inside and eight or ten minutes later left. After she had gone, the men informed the boarding house that they would not require the room any longer.

The defendant returned shortly afterwards and had a conversation with one of the men on the verandah without going into the room. The party then left the boarding house.

The complainant would tell the Court that when the defendant went into the room for the first time, she informed the people that the complainant's wife had reported his absence to the police, and the police were making enquiries. She suggested that it would be advisable to move the complainant.

It was then that the complainant was taken from the boarding house to a house in Cheung Lok Street where Man Chang lived. He was forced to remain in a cubicle until the following evening, when the defendant went to the house and said that the police had found out all about the affair. The defendant then advised the people to release the complainant.

MACAO VISIT STORY.

Before the complainant was allowed to go, the defendant told him that he was to inform the police he had been to Macao of his own accord. If he told them that he had been detained, he would be struck to death.

After the complainant had given evidence bearing out the outline of the prosecuting officer, he was cross-examined by Mr. Sin, who suggested that he could have escaped if he had made the attempt. This the complainant refuted by saying that he had been threatened with death if he made any attempt

"RED" ACTIVITIES IN SHANGHAI

AGITATION AGAINST LYTTON REPORT

Shanghai, Nov. 22. According to semi-official sources, Communist agitation among local students is providing cause for some anxiety lest trouble should develop.

In consequence of the situation, the Municipality of Greater Shanghai has instructed the Bureau of Education to warn the schools and students against subversive elements and has enjoined that strict precautionary measures be taken.

Documents seized in the course of numerous recent raids reveal that the Communist organisations have changed their tactics from open outbreaks to clandestine activities in the schools and factories.

It is understood that the Communists are attempting to instigate ebullitions by the students and factory workers by playing upon their patriotic fervour.

The latest of such attempts is said to be the organisation of an association among the students to agitate against the Lytton Report.

POLICE DOUBTS

IS MAN DEAF AND DUMB?

"Defendant seems to be deaf and dumb, but the police are not satisfied," said Inspector Elston at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning in charging a youth before Mr. Butters for picking the pocket of a passenger on the Star Ferry yesterday afternoon.

Inspector Elston stated that defendant attempted to steal a fountain-pen from the pocket of the complainant, and added, "We usually find that deaf and dumb people make some sort of a sound, but defendant is absolutely silent."

After an unsuccessful attempt by the Court interpreter to make defendant understand the charge, his Worship remanded the case for one week for medical inspection.

TROTSKY'S DREAD

Italian, as Parga at Marseilles yesterday afternoon. Evidently the ship's wireless had been active long before the Praga reached Marseilles, and a police launch was awaiting the Praga ten miles out at sea.

Trotsky transferred to the police launch and was landed at a quiet spot a little down the coast, the Praga arriving in Marseilles without him, of course. The journalists refused to believe he had gone and searched the ship high and low and then still kept a close watch upon the vessel for a surreptitious departure.

TRACKED DOWN.

One journalist, however, tracked him down to his temporary place of residence, but found Trotsky with very little to say. He declared that he is not engaged on a propaganda tour, but is going to Copenhagen to give scientific lectures.

WALLER TRIAL CONTINUES

"MUST HAVE MEANT BRIBERY"

DETECTIVE'S VIEW

Evidence given by a Chinese detective in the trial of Acting Sub-Inspector Herbert Waller at the Criminal Sessions this morning was to the effect that when accused asked Ho Hong-sang for money, it must have meant bribery, because bail could only be fixed at the Police Station, and not in the man's shop where the alleged demand was made.

The case is being heard before the Chief Justice and a jury, Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant Attorney General, prosecuting, and Mr. Duncan McNeill, instructed by Mr. J. K. Hall Brutton defending.

ABSENT WITNESS.

Mr. Fraser this morning referred to the deposition of Wong Fuk, one of the witnesses in the case who was unable to attend owing to illness. The statement said that on October 2nd he was in the Po Sang-tong shop sitting in a cubicle. Three other people were present including Ho Hong-sang, who was sitting on a stool holding something in his hand. He did not know what was in the parcel.

At about noon, a European sergeant of Police came in. He was in uniform and was followed by a Chinese detective. He would be unable to recognise them again. As soon as the sergeant came in he (witness) went out.

LOAN OF MONEY.

The sergeant said something to Ho Hong-sang. He returned in half-an-hour, but he did not see the sergeant or the detective. Ho Hong-sang asked him for a loan of $20. He lent Ho Hong-sang the money and then returned to his home. On October 12th a detective and Ho Hong-sang visited him and he was taken to the Police Station, where he identified Ho Hong-sang.

Shek Tin, Chinese sergeant-major of police, Yau-mai, gave evidence of visiting Wong Fak.

DETECTIVE'S STORY.

Ling Sam, the Chinese detective who accompanied the accused, deposed of visiting Tai-po market for street cleansing on October 2nd and also to make arrests of street hawkers in the street after it had been cleansed. The sergeant wished to make some arrests and wishing to get into the adjoining street without being seen, went through the Po Sang Tong shop. Witness followed him. Inside the shop was a small room into which the sergeant went.

OPIUM IN HAND.

Before witness entered he saw the Inspector holding Ho Hong-sang's hand. Ho Hong-sang was holding some opium. As he advanced inside the room, the Inspector had the opium in his hand. The Inspector asked him to hold the opium saying "Detective come in here; you hold it."

Witness held it in his hand and then placed it on the table. The Inspector then walked from the room and said to witness "Come out here." He thought the Inspector was going to arrest the man, but instead he said "I'll, at least $50 if he has no money."

Witness: "When I heard that I said 'No; that cannot be done.' Mr. Fraser: "What could not be done?"

BRIBERY MEANT.

Witness: "By his words I understood him to be asking for a bribe. I refused to do that. It could have meant nothing other than a bribe. It could not have meant bail, because bail could not be fixed there and then. Bail must be fixed at the Police Station."

Mr. Fraser: "Could it have referred to anything else but a bribe in your opinion at the time?"

Witness: "No; he also said 'If the money is paid, you can let him off.' These were his actual words."

Mr. Fraser: "Did he say anything else?"

Witness: "Yes. He said to Ho Hong-sang 'If you were arrested you would be fined several hundred dollars.'"

Continuing his evidence, Ling Sam said he took Ho Hong-sang out to try and raise money. The two of them went out together from the Po Wah Tong shop. Prior to that, said witness, the Inspector had entered the cubicle and taken away the opium.

Witness went with Ho Hong-sang to one shop where a conversation took place between Ho Hong-sang and the master and the two then returned to the Ho Wah Tong, not having been able to raise any money. The master of the Ho Wah Tong then had a conversation with Ho Hong-sang, after which he went out to borrow money and returned some minutes later.

REFUSED PARCEL.

It was at this point that the master produced a parcel and

HAPPY VALLEY HOLD-UP

MORE EVIDENCE IN SESSIONS CASE

At the criminal Sessions this morning, further evidence of the hold-up at Happy Valley Race-course was given before the Pulene Judge (Mr. Justice Wood) by Tsang Koo Foon, the girl who was with Lum, the architect's clerk when they were attacked on the night of October 4.

The girl said she was here on a visit from Japan. On the night of August 4 her cousin called at her house at 7 o'clock and asked her to go out for a walk and some exercise. When they got to Happy Valley, he suggested that they should run, which they did. After running for about a hundred yards, witness felt tired and sat down to rest. The two had some conversation which lasted about half an hour and at the end of that time a man in white came up quietly. Witness did not think he was a robber. The man came from their left, while at the same time, two other persons, dressed in black, came up from their right.

One of the men in black seized her by the wrists and attempted to search her, but rather than submit to that she took out seventy cents which she had and handed it to the robber, together with her wrist watch and ring. Meanwhile the other two men searched her cousin.

After the things had been taken away from them, the robbers said: "You may sit down now, no-one will molest you." The men then walked away and witness was shown the way home by her cousin, who proceeded after the robbers.

The first defendant, Chu Fuk, when asked by the Judge whether he wanted to question the witness made a statement to the effect that he was walking round the course at the time. When he passed the couple the first time, the man had his arm round the girl. He completed the circle in about half an hour and found the couple still in the same position. "If they were not in that position," argued the first accused, "she would not yield up her watch and ring."

Witness denied that she was sitting in the position indicated by the accused. She said that she sat on a newspaper while her cousin ran about, and when he wanted to rest he sat on the same sheet of newspaper.

Second defendant Chung Yee, said that there were a number of people walking on the course that night and he was one of them. Evidence was then given by three South Wales Borderers, and police officers.

The case is proceeding.

handed it to witness who, believing it to be money, refused it.

Mr. Fraser: "Why did you refuse it?—Because I knew it was wrong to accept a bribe, and that was a plan to ask for a bribe."

Continuing, witness said the money was then given to Ho Hong-sang and witness took him out to find the Inspector. They located the accused on the first floor of Cheung Chun Shop. As witness entered he shouted out "Inspector, Inspector, there is a man to see you!" The accused came down and the parcel was handed to him by Ho Hong-sang.

After he had handed the parcel to the accused, Ho Hong-sang left and the Inspector put the parcel into his pocket. Witness then conversed with the accused about the cleansing and left the shop to collect money in connexion with street cleansing from the shops in Fu Sin Street. After completing his patrol, he returned to the Police Station. Between the market and the station he met the Inspector again.

TOLD TO SELL IT.

The Inspector handed witness the packet of opium and told him to go and sell it. After he had received the opium he returned to the market to sell the opium. He failed to do so at that time and took the opium back to the Station. Eventually he sold it for $12 and handed the money to the defendant at the Station at about 6 p.m. He placed it on the charge-room table and the Inspector said "You just take it for tea."

"MY BUSINESS."

Witness replied "I cannot do that." The Inspector then smiled and said "That is entirely my business. You need not worry about it." The Inspector then took the money and put it in his pocket.

Mr. McNeill, cross-examining: "Did you state all you have said to-day in the Magistrate's Court?"

Witness: "I cannot say every word I have spoken to-day was said in the Magistrate's Court. The trial is proceeding."

QUEST FOR THE "TELEGRAPH" CUP BEGINS

AUSTRALIA'S 13 FOR FIRST "TEST"

M. W. WOODFULL.

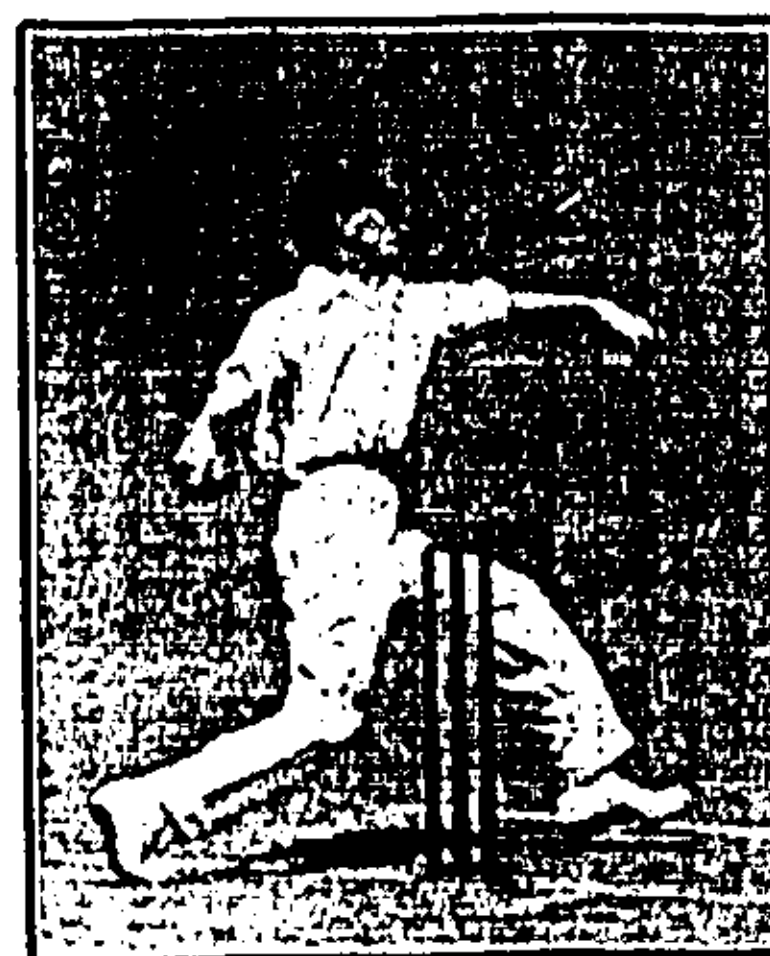

UNEXPERIMENTAL
SELECTION

WOODFULL AS CAPTAIN

ONLY THREE NEW NAMES

MANY OLD HANDS

That the Australian Test selectors have decided to refrain from experiments in the composition of the Australian team to meet England in the first Test Match next month is indicated by the 13 players selected by the Board of Control.

C. GRIMMETT.

Only three new names appear, and it is quite possible that the final choice will find but one player in the team who has not before appeared in Test cricket. According to Reuters, the Australian team for the match at Sydney on December 2, will be selected from:

W. M. Woodfull (Victoria).
D. G. Bradman (New South Wales).
S. McCabe (New South Wales).
A. Kippax (New South Wales).
T. Wall (South Australia).
W. H. Ponsford (Victoria).
W. Fingleton (New South Wales).
C. V. Grimmett (South Australia).
H. Ironmonger (Victoria).
L. Nagel (Victoria).
W. A. Oldfield (New South Wales).
L. O'Reilly (New South Wales).
V. Y. Richardson (South Australia).

THE NEWCOMERS.

Of these only W. Fingleton, L. O'Reilly and L. Nagel are newcomers to Test cricket. Nagel yesterday made cricket history by putting out England in their second innings against an Australian XI for a paltry 60 runs, believed to be about the lowest score on record in unofficial Test games of this description. Nagel's figures read:

O.	M.	R.	Wkts.
10	3	32	8

The remainder of the selected are all old hands. Charlie Grimmett, who has been playing in Test cricket longer than any of the other nominees, will be the chief hope of attack.

STRONG TEAM.

It is fairly certain that W. M. Woodfull, who successfully captained the side in England in 1930, will again hold this important position, and there is no doubt that he will have a strong team at his command.

It is a particularly powerful batting side, with D. G. Bradman, Woodfull, McCabe, Kippax, Richardson, Ponsford, and Oldfield all safe for any amount of runs. Ironmonger, who will probably find himself in the final selection on the strength of his bowling, is the oldest player, being 45 years of age.

Grimmett is 40, Richardson 33, Woodfull 35, Oldfield 35, and Ponsford 32. The six players have an average age of 37.5.

INTERPORT SHOOT

SHANGHAI DEFEAT SINGAPORE

Shanghai are a leg up in the triangular Interport shooting contest, in which the Northern Port, Hongkong and Singapore are taking part. Shanghai defeated Singapore after a thrilling struggle by three shots, their total being 926 against Singapore's 923. The Hongkong team will fire on December 14.

INTERPORTERS LEAVE FOR NORTH

FULL OF QUIET
CONFIDENCE

GOING ALL OUT
TO WIN

By
"Veritas"

If quiet confidence goes for anything, Hongkong are going to win—and win well—the Interport football against Shanghai on Saturday next.

It was really refreshing and most encouraging to meet the local team and their manager, Mr. W. E. Hollands, on board the President McKinley last night when they embarked preparatory to sailing early this morning for the Northern port. They refused to be despondent about last Saturday's game, and without the slightest arrogance, expressed, one and all, their confidence in bringing back the coveted Interport trophy from the Shanghai domain.

Said Manager Hollands, "This is the fifth time I have been with the Interport team and never have I felt so confident in their ability to win." Courageous words, which everyone will hope to be seen borne out in a few days time.

THIRD TIME LUCKY.

Rodger, the Hongkong skipper, without being quite so emphatic, expressed his belief in the team in the following words "I think we have a good chance of winning. We were not all out on Saturday."

"Anyhow, this is my third game, and the third time is always lucky."

Bryant, the Artillery's sharpshooter, who is travelling as reserve said "We are going to do our best, and after all one can't do more than that, and Andy Duncan, who also revealed, the fact that the Interporters were deliberately playing at half speed on Saturday to avoid risk of injuries, remarked "Frankly, I think we stand a good chance of pulling it off."

The team, together with a number of friends as well as Mr. C. M. Manners, Chairman of the went aboard about a quarter to eleven. He told me that he was feeling no ill-effects from Saturday.

It appears that loss of studs to his boots was his chief worry in that match. "I finished the game with only one stud," he explained, "but have got things right now, and am not expecting a repetition of the trouble in Shanghai for I believe the grounds there are not quite so hard as ours in Hongkong."

This problem of Bliss's opens up a rather interesting point. Are studs or bars to one's football boots preferable in Hongkong? With our very hard grounds there is no doubt that studs are more liable to be wrenched off, whereas bars right across the soles and heels remain permanent fixtures, and, on the whole, I think offer a better grip.

The team is due to arrive on Thursday, and they will, of course, have some practice among themselves before the big match.

SUGGESTION TO ZBW.

The Interport match takes place at the Canidrome on Saturday, and it is worth recalling that arrangements are being made for a running commentary to be broadcast from RUOK station.

May I suggest to ZBW that this presents an admirable opportunity for a relay which would be tremendously appreciated in Hongkong. So far as I understand it is quite possible for such a relay to be made.

On Sunday next the Hongkong team will meet the Rest of Shanghai, and, according to Mr. Hollands, it is quite on the cards Football Association, Mr. H. M. McTavish, Chairman of the Selection Committee, and Mr. G. Caswell of the Football Association, assembled on the President McKinley shortly after 10 o'clock last night, and of course there was the mascot.

THE MASCOT.

The mascot is a felix cat, with a long tail which sticks up—symbolic of the Hongkong team. Mr. Hollands pointed out—and adorned around the neck with silk blue and white ribbons, the Colony's football colours.

There was a cheery air of optimism about the whole team. S. Strange was an early arrival and he told me that his army injury had completely recovered. "I played four sets of tennis today," he pointed out by way of substantiating his assertion; and honestly I can conceive of no better test.

In fact, a most encouraging feature, and one which is keeping Manager Hollands, and his assistant, Mr. Y. K. Mok, happy, is that the Interporters are setting off as fit as fiddles. Bryant, who may be needed, also reports himself O. K. His leg injury, sustained during the Armistice Day match has completely recovered.

BLISS'S STUDS.

"Sonny" Bliss, all smiles and looking in the best of condition,

DUNCAN'S DECLARATION.

If it gives of its best, nothing else matters. That it will do this I am sure that is no doubt, especially if the players are all imbued with the same zeal as Andy Duncan, who declared "I am going all out, and am willing to break my neck in this Interport game."

Providing there are no accidents, Hongkong will line up the following team on Saturday next:

Rodger (Club, Capt.); Mullane (S.W.I.) and S. Strange (Club); Bliss (Kowloon), Pardo (R. Artillery) and A. Duncan (Club); Cheng Shui-hong (S. China), Wong Mee-shun (S. China), Howe (Club), Suen Kam-shun (Athletic), and Baldry (Lincolns). The reserves will be Lau Mau (S. China), Bryant (R. Artillery), and Leung Wing-chui (S. China).

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

Army Fifteen for the Triangular Series.

The following team will represent the Army in the triangular tournament match (Army v. Navy) on the Soekpoo ground at 4.15 p.m. tomorrow (Wednesday):—Full-back, Lieut. Bir; three-quarters, Lieut. Martin, Lieut. Hamilton, Lieut. Galleley, Lieut. Crew-Read; half-backs, Privates Stevens and Hoskins; forwards, Lieut. Hebert, Lance Cpl. Pratt, Cpl. Suter, Lance Cpl. Hardy, Pte. Gilmore, Lieut. Macfarlane, Lieut. Prior, Pte. Walters. Referee, Major McIntyre.

SEVERAL ROBBERY CASES BEFORE PUISNE JUDGE

Three men, Tang Yun-chiu, Cheung Wal-in, and Li Tung, were sentenced to three years' imprisonment and twenty-four strokes of the birch by the Puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Wood) on a charge of robbery by two or more. Both pleaded guilty. Mr. T. S. Whyte-Smith prosecuted.

The robbery was committed on a house in Shek Wu Tong, which is about five miles South of Tai-O Police Station. Four or five men entered the house at 1 a.m. and surprised the inmates, three women. Mr. Whyte-Smith for the Crown stated that as far as he knew no arms were produced. The men were not men from that village but were from Samshui-ping. The first defendant was arrested on October 2 in Samshui-ping and the other two in Mongkok, five days later.

The robbers took away $389 worth of money and property, and of this, $300 worth of property was recovered.

Two Years for Larceny. Sentence of two years hard labour was passed on Chan Sang, alias Li Mow, who pleaded guilty to six charges of larceny, extending over three months.

The thefts to which the accused pleaded guilty were as follows:— July 8 at Kowloon Tong, a clock from Mr. J. Cameron; July 20 at Kowloon Tong, an electric iron from Shu Ho Suk; August 22 at Kowloon Tong, a gold watch from Mr. C. Thomas; September 18 at Kowloon, a sewing machine from Mrs. Alice Burleigh; October 4 from Homunth, 2 silk dresses from Miss M. Rajala; October 22 from Kowloon Tong—a gramophone from Mr. Harboto.

Mr. Whyte-Smith, prosecuting, stated that the thefts were rather clever thefts. The defendant's record showed that he had been convicted four times of larceny, once of house-breaking and once of assault. At the time he was arrested he was under police supervision, but had failed to report.

His Lordship passed sentence of four months on each of the six charges, making two years in all.

Another man, Tsang Kau, who was arraigned before the Court on three charges of larceny and three of receiving, was sentenced to one year's hard labour on his pleading guilty to the larceny charges. The charges of receiving were not proceeded with.

BUSY TIME AHEAD

ITEMS ON PARLIAMENT'S PROGRAMME

London, Nov. 21.
The King, who with the Queen, returned to London from Sandringham, Norfolk, on Saturday, will tomorrow drive in state to reopen Parliament after its brief holiday since Thursday. Their Majesties will leave Buckingham Palace in a state coach drawn by eight bay horses with a royal escort of Life Guards along a route lined by the Brigade of Guards.

As the procession reaches the house of Lords, a salute of 41 guns will be fired in St. James Park.

The speech which the King will deliver from the throne in the House of Lords will foreshadow a heavy programme, legislative and otherwise, for the coming session.
The principal bill before Parliament will be that dealing with unemployment insurance. It is probable that in reference to international affairs the King's speech will give prominence to the disarmament question, while mention will doubtless be made of the world economic conference to be held in London early next year.

Among imperial matters, the new Indian round table conference, now meeting in London, will also be dealt with. After that conference has ended, probably about Christmas, joint select committee of both Houses of Parliament will be set up to consider the Minister's proposals.

In addition to the unemployment insurance bill, many measures of a domestic nature dealing with such subjects as rent restriction, land settlement, reorganisation of agricultural industries and post office reforms will come before Parliament during the session.—British Wireless.

CHINESE CHARGED WITH WOUNDING WOMAN

Charged with unlawfully wounding a woman, Kau Chu Ping appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon. The case will be continued to-day.

Lai Choi Yung, victim of the alleged assault, gave evidence that she called at the defendant's home at 7 p.m. on November 4 and asked for rent owing by him. The defendant, who was playing chess with another man, made no reply.

Fifteen minutes later she repeated her request. The defendant jumped to his feet and dragged her towards the stairs.

When they reached the ground floor her son arrived and remonstrated with the defendant. The struggle continued on the pavement outside. Suddenly the defendant drew a dagger and stabbed her on the right thigh.

Continuing, witness said in the confusion which followed the defendant threw the dagger away.

Cross-examined by Mr. Horne,
Lo who appeared for the defendant, witness denied that one of her sons had assaulted the defendant.

Yang Leung Koo, who witnessed part of the affray from the street, said he saw the last witness lying on the footpath bleeding from the thigh.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lo, he admitted that the victim's son had told him to come to Court and tell his story.

Mr. Lo: Actually, you were never there.

Witness: I was there and went for the last witness's sons.

The case was adjourned until this afternoon.

ILLEGAL POSSESSION
OF TOBACCO.CHINESE FINED AT THE
KOWLOON MAGISTRACY

Before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon, two Chinese, Wong Hing and Liu Chi, were charged with being in unlawful possession of 490 pounds of dutiable tobacco in Mongkok on November 17.

Mr. E. W. Hamilton, Superintendent of Imports and Exports, appeared for the prosecution, while Mr. C. E. L. Grist defended the second defendant. Mr. J. B. Prentiss watched the proceedings on behalf of Messrs. Gilman and Company, the owners of a lorry on which the contraband was found.

Lam Ming, a Chinese Revenue Officer, gave evidence that about 7 a.m. on November 17, he saw a lorry at Tong Mee Street, Mongkok. On this lorry were the defendants, Li Chi being the driver. He noticed that the lorry was carrying eight sacks and a number of rattan baskets. On asking the first defendant about the contents of the sacks, he was told that they contained native cloth.

Suspecting that these sacks contained contraband, witness opened them and found they contained tobacco.

The second defendant said the goods belonged to the first defendant. He also stated that the lorry was hired at Sheungshui.

Revenue Officer John Brown said that shortly after 8 a.m. on November 17, the last witness informed him that he had detained a motor lorry. Witness then went to examine the lorry and found the two defendants.

On questioning the first defendant, witness was told that he had been asked by a man to take the packages to Mongkok where he was to wait. The second defendant said a man—not the defendant—engaged him at Sheungshui for $7 to carry eight sacks to Mongkok.

After hearing the evidence, his Worship said it had not been proved that second defendant had guilty knowledge of the contraband and accordingly discharged him.

The first defendant was convicted and fined $5,000 or six months.

His Worship further ordered the tobacco to be confiscated.

With regard to an application by Mr. Hamilton for the confiscation of the lorry, Mr. Prentiss asked his Worship to reserve the point and to fix a date for legal argument.

His Worship adjourned this point for one week.

A valuable pomeranian dog, the property of Mr. Ho Kwong, was stolen from his owner's residence in Macdonald Road at 9 o'clock last night. The animal which was of pedigree stock was recently from Australia.

Two Chinese were seen carrying the dog away and running down Garden Road. Mr. Ho Kwong informed the police who immediately instituted inquiries.

SALE OF CROWN LAND.

PLOT PURCHASED AT THE
UPSET PRICE

Only one lot of Crown land was put up for sale at yesterday's auction at the P. W. D. office. It comprised an area of about 6,820 square feet, situated at Ma Tau Chung.

The upset price of the lot was $5,115. There was no bidding beyond this price, and the land was bought by Mr. Wong Pui-yien, of Messrs. Hazeland and Gonella.

ROBBERY ON LOCAL
RACE COURSE.TWO MEN CHARGED AT THE
CRIMINAL SESSIONS

How three Chinese held up and robbed a youth and his cousin on the Happy Valley race course, and how two were caught by men of the South Wales Borderers, was told at the Criminal Sessions yesterday (Mr. Justice Wood), when Chiu Fuk and Chung Yee were arraigned on a charge of robbery by two or more on October 4. Mr. T. S. Whyte-Smith prosecuted.

The jury comprised Messrs. L. C. Grover (foreman), W. Weir, J. D. Butcher, P. M. Pinguet, Pang Kok-sui, S. G. Green, and G. A. V. Hall.

Case for Crown.

Mr. Whyte-Smith stated that on October 4 a young architect's draftsman called Lum was on the golf course at Happy Valley with his cousin, Miss Chan. It was dark and the pair had gone there to do some running. Miss Chan ran around for a while and then sat down beside her cousin who was changing his boots. They sat down twenty yards from the inner ring of the race course not far from the Naval Pavilion. Lum would say a man in white, the man he identified as Fuk, and two other men in black came from the direction of the Jockey Club. The man in white and one of the others seized him by the wrists and twisted his arms behind his back. One of the men produced a small knife and then said "Your money or your life." He searched Lum and took from him a piece of rubber and two pencils.

Gave Up Articles.

The third man went up to Miss Chan and was about to search her. Her evidence was to the effect that when he proceeded to search her she handed him her wrist-watch, her ring and what money she had in her possession (70 cts.). There was a discrepancy in the evidence on this point, because Mr. Lum would say he saw the watch being snatched from Miss Chan. She said she gave it up. The men then went away. Lum followed them at a distance, and when he got to the gate he saw three soldiers to whom he pointed out the accused men. The soldiers approached the men and they ran away. The soldiers chased them and caught them up. They were taken to the Police Station.

Prisoners' Statements.

When cautioned at the Police Station and charged, Fuk stated, "Last night I was there. Two men ran towards a man and woman because they were both clinging together and wanted to ask them for lucky money. The girl took off her watch and gave it to one of the men, and then both of them walked away. When that man (Lum) spoke to the three British soldiers the man who had got the watch ran away."

When prisoner appeared before the Magistrates' Court he stated that there were five persons on the race course. Nothing was found on him. He claimed it was a false charge against him.

The second accused stated, "I arrived in Hongkong on September 29. I came to look for a job. I could not get one and wished to return to my country in a few days time. I was walking on the race course. I was arrested by ... I have nothing to say." In a later statement he said there was nothing found on him and there was no proof at all that he took part in the robbery.

Evidence was given by Mr. Lum, who stated that the man who at-

WEEK-END FUNCTIONS

ATTRACTIVE FEATURES AT
THE PENINSULA HOTEL

Two outstanding functions took place over the week-end at the Peninsula Hotel, a special dinner dance in the Rose Room on Saturday night and a military band concert in the lounge on Sunday evening.

On Saturday the popular ball-room entertainers Hugo and Josephine gave a farewell performance. For the past six weeks they have delighted large audiences during the nightly dinner dances, and at special parties in the Rose Room, at which they have figured in artistic dancing, and last Saturday their display, like previous occasions, was enthusiastically received by the large number of diners present.

At this function, also, were introduced two talented Australian girl artists, the sisters Layne and Marie Mayne, who have scored a distinctive success with Shanghai's public at the Canidrome. Their opening performance of an entirely new repertoire of songs, dances and amusing patter won hearty applause. These performers, who have been engaged for a season by the management of the Peninsula Hotel, will appear nightly in the Rose Room during the dinner dance.

The concert on Sunday evening was provided by the band of the 1st Battalion the Lincolnshire Regiment, under the conductorship of Mr. C. S. Trowt. There was a good attendance who enjoyed a splendid musical entertainment.

lacked his cousin was the third man, and not either of the accused. The accused attacked him. The hearing was then adjourned.

GUILD MEN IN A FIGHT

POLICE HAVE TO INTERVENE

"Guild fever" led to an unruly incident at Wanchai on Sunday night, when a large force of police and district watchmen had to be moved against members of a coolie organisation, who had disagreed amongst themselves and were fighting.

Earlier, the police who had got wind of the Guild's doings, had raided a tea-house at Wanchai Road, but without finding anyone turning up for the big meeting expected to be held there. As they were returning to the Station, they came into contact with the men fighting at a point near the old Station.

The large number of policemen and watchmen called into service enabled each of them to make an arrest, and from this number of prisoners, seven were brought into Court this morning and charged with disorderly conduct.

Inspector Russell, who prosecuted, said the Guild was formed two weeks ago, in Shamshui, and when a branch was recently established in Wanchai, in the quarters of the coolies at the Eastern District Sanitary offices, disagreement arose over the fact that the officials of that sub-Guild were exclusively Hoklos. The dissidents proposed to establish an independent Guild, and the Hoklos were out to prevent the defection. Both parties were attempting to fight out the issue when the police intervened.

Inspector Russell said one of the men in Court was a Sanitary Department coolie.

Mr. Schofield fined the defendants $10 each and bound them over.

TRAFFIC CASES

BATCH OF OFFENDERS FINED

On a summons brought by Sergeant Brittain against Mr. A. F. Jenkins, before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning, the defendant was fined $5 for driving from east to west in Chater Road, between Jackson Street and Murray Road.

Mr. M. R. Deb was fined $5 for causing an obstruction by leaving his motor car in Woonmeichung Road, near Village Road, during a London, Nov. 21.

A flight which will be unique in its way is now contemplated by Mr. Mollison.

He and Mrs. Mollison (Amy Johnson) are likely to make a dual attempt on the Cape-England flight record each in a different machine.

The plan was announced by the famous Atlantic airman in an interview with Reuters this evening, when he said he had cabled the proposal to Amy and was awaiting her reply.

If she approved of the plan, he said, he will fly to the Cape immediately by easy stages, join his wife, and commence a joint flight home, coming in together, he hoped, with a new record. He does not contemplate that they shall be rivals in any way.

EARLY IN DECEMBER.

The best time for the attempt would be about December 9 when they will have the advantage of a full moon.

Mollison said he did not mind what perils they faced together, but he did not like to know that Amy was meeting dangers alone. He had had enough for the present of waiting in anxiety. If he was with his wife, he would be quite happy.—Reuters.

Race Meeting, thus causing an obstruction.

A similar fine was imposed on Mr. A. A. Rumbach who was summoned for allowing his car to cause an obstruction in Des Voeux Road Central.

The driver of a taxi was fined $20 when summoned for dangerous driving in Queen's Road East. It was stated by Inspector C. F. Alexander, that the defendant had travelled at a speed of from 25 to 30 miles an hour from Arsenal Street to Stubbs Road.

A public car driver was summoned before his Worship and fined $10 for disobeying a traffic signal at the junction of Arbutnot Road and Caine Road.

LATE JUROR REPROVED

THE WALLER TRIAL DELAYED

The belated appearance of Mr. W. S. V. Curtis, one of the jurors sitting in the Waller bribery case at the Supreme Court, called for a severe criticism by the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp) this morning.

The Court was due to commence at 10 a.m. but Mr. Curtis did not arrive until 10.15.

The Judge:—Mr. Curtis, I understand you were late.

Mr. Curtis:—I am sorry, your Lordship.

You are the only one who made a mistake. Did you make a mistake in the time?—No. You see I am the only European on the staff of my firm, and I could not get away.

In future you must be here in time. People sitting on a jury should show respect to the Court.

HOUSEBREAKER SENTENCED

GETS SIX MONTHS' TERM

With two previous convictions against him, a man named Wong Poi was charged at the Kowloon Magistracy before Mr. Butters this morning with housebreaking.

Inspector Elston, who prosecuted, alleged that defendant climbed up to the roof of Wing Lok Buildings at about 3 a.m. yesterday, and eventually made his way into a bath-room. He was arrested before he could steal anything.

The police officer stated that defendant was given ten strokes in 1922 for larceny, and some time later served a year and half in prison for highway robbery.

His Worship passed sentence of six months' hard labour and two years' police supervision.

The U.S. gunboat Asheville arrived from Amoy early this morning, and fired a salute of 21 guns which was returned by Blackhead Fort. Immediately afterwards the Asheville fired a salute of 17 guns to Admiral M.M. Taylor, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Asiatic Fleet, the salute being returned by U.S.S. Houston.
